BARDIA FALLS; TOBRUK DRIVE OPENS

More Than 30,000 Prisoners Taken As Base Captured

Tanks, Guns, Equipment and Stores Of All Kinds Are Taken At Bardia—Great Day For Australian Forces

MELBOURNE, Jan. 6.—(CP-Reuters)—An Australian communique issued today said Australian dead and wounded at Bardia do not exceed 500.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Britain's army of the Nile, pushing swiftly into Libya behind captured Bardia, announced today its vanguards already are approaching Tobruk, Italy's next big seaport base 70 miles farther west.

The town was subjected to intense bombing by the Royal Air Force over the week-end. One of the fires started could be seen from Bardia.

So far, a general headquarters communique said, British authorities have counted more than 30,000 prisoners taken when Bardia's garrison surrendered yesterday to a British land, sea and air assault.

"Quantities of tanks, guns, equipment and stores of all sorts" also fell to the British forces when the Union Jack was raised over the Fascist outpost, making it the new advance base for the drive in Libya.

While the rapid thrust into the Tobruk area does not necessarily mean an imminent new offensive, military sources said it would not be surprising if General Sir Archibald Wavell decided to strike quickly again before the Italians can recover from the Bardia defeat.

(Reports in London said British mechanized forces are operating 20 miles south of Tobruk and that a "close blockade" has been established around the port).

Eleven Italian planes were shot down in yesterday's air fighting without the loss of a single British plane, an R.A.F. communique said. Other fascist aircraft were badly damaged.

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 6—(AP)—Advanced British mechanized units swirling over the Libyan desert after the fall of Bardia already are operating around the other defences of Tobruk, with indications tonight that they might sweep around that immediate objective to attack Bengasi, across Cirenaica, on the Gulf of Sidra.

Tons of bombs were dropped on Tobruk's military buildings, airdromes, naval barracks and defence fortifications, the communique announced.

R. A. F. planes guided to their target by the blazing fire dropped additional bombs into the centre of the conflagration, "considerably increasing its area."

(Searchlights illuminating the attacking troops at Bardia so they could be subjected to machine-gunning were said in London to have been a feature of the Italian defence. However, the Australians kept their casualties low through their ability to hide among desert rocks and ravines to escape this trick.)

It was a great day for the Australians who had come 7,000 miles to fight the Italians, for they clinched the most decisive and strategically the most important victory since the desert warfare started.

Still further cheering to British forces was the announcement that Free French forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's African army had penetrated to the rear of Bardia and cut the road to Tobruk. They and British forces who performed a like action at another point, effectively blocked the Italian retreat and brought the whole Bardia garrison, including Gen. Annibale Bergonzoli, its commander, and five other senior generals, into British hands.

(Military sources here said the capture of the garrison left behind to hold out while Tobruk's defences were reinforced, meant that Graziani had lost some 80,000 of his North African army of 250,000 in less than a month. Nearly 40,000 were reported captured

Harry L. Hopkins Leaving Today On Mission To Britain

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(CP)—Harry L. Hopkins, who knows President Roosevelt's mind as does probably no other man in the United States, plans to leave today by Clipper plane to interpret that mind to Winston Churchill.

Today's War Moves

ADVICES that British advance units are now approaching Tobruk within 24 hours of the fall of Bardia indicates an intention to try to wipe the Italian army entirely out of the Cyrenaica province of Libya. The problem facing Marshal Graziani whether to make a major stand at Tobruk or only to duplicate the isolated defense of Bardia is a difficult one.

If he concentrates his principal force at Tobruk it will be subjected to naval as well as land and air bombardment. At the same time the British should be able to cut off the road west of Tobruk as they cut the western Bardia road, which would prevent fresh supplies reaching the beleaguered garrrison.

The eventual capitulation of Tobruk seems inevitable because of scarcity of supplies if for no other reason. It would seem to be better strategy for Graziani under this circumstance not to bottle his main army there but to leave a holding detachment only, as at Bardia.

If those tactics are followed and the main Italian body gets away from Tobruk, Graziani's final stand in Cyrenaica should be made at Benghazi. This port has been the principal supply base for the Italian operators in Libya and is 250 miles west of Tobruk.

Should the British eventually take Benghazi, the remaining part of Graziani's army, if any, would have no alternative but to disperse

AMY JOHNSON MOLLISON

Feared Drowned

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Amy Johnson Mollison, one of the Empire's outstanding women fliers and divorced wife of the trans-Atlantic Pilot James A. Mollison, is feared to have drowned in the Thames estuary after bailing out of an airplane she was ferrying yesterday for the Air Transport Auxiliary.

An unsuccessful search for her was made by the Royal Air Force and a speedboat after she had bailed out and her plane was seen to dive into the sea.

All that was found were the flight authorization papers for her machine — which was off its course.

BY-ELECTION FOR CAMROSE FEBRUARY 6

Vote Will Fill Vacant Seat—Nomination Day Is January 27

By-election in Camrose provincial constituency to elect a successor to the late Hon. D. B. Mullen, will be held on Thursday, February 6, it was announced Monday by Premier Aberhart. The government has approved the necessary order-in-council.

Nomination day, fixed by statute at 10 days before election day, is Monday, January 27. A deposit of $100 is required from all those filing nomination papers.

In the 1935 provincial general election, the late Mr. Mullen ran as an Edmonton candidate, but in the election of March last, he ran for Camrose. He died October 28 in a city hospital following a heart seizure.

Hon. D. Bruce MacMillan, M.L.A. for Lacombe, succeeded him as minister of agriculture.

Nominations will close at 2 p.m., January 27 at Camrose.

PREPARES FOR VOTE

Following selection by the government of by-election day, preparations for the balloting were rushed by R. A. Andison, clerk of the legislature and chief electoral officer.

As a new voters' list was prepared for the provincial general election last March, in Camrose, as in all other constituencies, it will be unnecessary to have an enumeration for the by-election.

The new member is expected to take his place at the opening of the next session which will be called, it is expected, in the latter half of February.

Indications are that there will be a three-cornered fight for the seat.

Social Credit forces will defend the seat. Three candidates were selected at a nominating convention, namely Mrs. J. Tucker and Morley Westgate, Camrose, and C. J. Sayers, of Meeting Creek.

From these a final candidate will be named by the selection committee.

Chester A. Ronning, who sat for Camrose in the dying days of the U.F.A. administration, already has been nominated as the C.C.F. candidate and reports are that W. N. Chant, former minister of agriculture in the present government, who won the seat for Social Credit in 1935 may run as an Independent. Mr. Chant broke with the government and crossed the floor of the house.

Independents will name their candidate at a meeting to be held next Friday at Camrose.

Last March, in the provincial general election, there were 5,506 votes cast, of which Mr. Mullen on the first count received 2,472, Mr. Ronning 1,550 and Dr. J. D. Neville, Independent, 1,484. In the final count Mr. Mullen polled 2,582 and Mr. Ronning 2,508.

B.C. MINISTERS WILL OPPOSE TAX TRANSFER

Cabinet Members To Seek Better Terms Under Sirois Report

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

VANCOUVER, Jan. 6. — Last but one of five members of the provincial cabinet heading for Ottawa to present British Columbia's case for better terms to the inter-provincial conference on the Rowell-Sirois report, Hon. Gordon S. Wismer, K.C., attorney-general, left Vancouver Sunday night.

Premier T. D. Pattullo, Hon. John Hart, minister of finance; Hon. George M. Weir, provincial secretary, left earlier. Hon. K. C. Macdonald, minister of agriculture, will follow soon. The conference opens January 14. The cabinet members are accompanied by several departmental experts.

Salient features of the conference as far as British Columbia is concerned are the future of social services in this province and the future of provincial income, succession duty and corporation taxes. These taxes total nearly $13,000,000 annually toward British Columbia's revenue. The cabinet delegation will oppose their transference to federal revenue, as suggested in the Rowell-Sirois report.

Premier Pattullo and his ministers point out that these revenues are only slightly in excess of the amount the province spends each year on social services through the department of education and provincial secretary's department.

The Rowell-Sirois recommendations, they argue, would have a Dominion-wide standard of social services. British Columbia at present has the highest standard in Canada, being far in excess of several other provinces.

FROM "WASTING" ASSETS

Income from taxes, the premier has pointed out on several occasions, is derived from "wasting" assets—province's timber and minerals. Revenue in Ontario and Quebec, however, is derived largely from the manufacturing industry, which will continue long after timber and mineral resources.

As the federal house opens February 14, it is expected that the conference will conclude its deliberations some time before that date.

RE-ELECTION OF F. D. ROOSEVELT MADE OFFICIAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt was officially declared by the United States Senate and House in Congress assembled today to have been elected to a third term.

At the same time, Henry A. Wallace was announced to have been chosen vice-president.

The announcement was made by Vice-President Garner, presiding in the house chamber over a joint session of the two houses called to canvas the electoral votes of states, by which presidents and vice-presidents win their offices.

The counting required less than half an hour as Garner, in rapid succession, removed the electoral certificates from sealed envelopes and handed them to the tellers for inspection. The vote:

Mr. Roosevelt and Wallace, 449 votes; Wendell L. Willkie and Senator Charles L. McNary, the Republican candidates, 82.

ITALO U-BOATS ARE DAMAGED, SUNK BY R.A.F.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(CP)—The air ministry announced today that Royal Air Force bombers had "severely damaged or sunk outright" Italian submarines at the German-held base of Bordeaux, on the French coast.

Bordeaux is used by the axis navies as a base for submarines raiding shipping in the Atlantic.

The ministry's news service, in a round-up of what it called "damage to Italy's war machine," said also that British authorities had learned that British air raids on northern Italy in October had been "so effective that the Italian people attributed almost supernatural powers to our bomb aimers."

Demands Arms Speed-Up

PRESIDENT FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, above, in his annual message to the Congress of the United States, demanded a speed-up in American arms production both for defence and to send to the democracies at present at war.

German Troops Will March Into Bulgaria; Ultimatum Is Given

Germans Expected To March Into Country Wednesday—Russia's Position Is Not Yet Clear

Copyright, 1941, by United Press and British United Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(BUP)—Private advices received by the United Press and British United Press in New York said today that German troops will march into Bulgaria shortly as a result of a Nazi ultimatum which was reported to have been accepted by Bulgaria.

The information reaching here said that the German ultimatum was delivered Saturday and that Bulgaria acquiesced to the Nazi demands.

According to this account, Germany's demands were presented to Bulgarian Premier Bogdan Filoff by Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop at a conference held Saturday.

In this connection it was recalled that Filoff was reported to have disappeared from his Viena hotel on Saturday and left for Salzburg, near Von Ribbentrop's mountain estate.

UNABLE TO RESIST

The information obtained by the British United Press indicated that the German demands were submitted at this conference and that Bulgaria, apparently in line with previous advices from Sofia, found herself unable to resist Germany's wishes.

The British United Press advices did not specify on what date German troops would move in. However, dispatches from Belgrade today mentioned Wednesday as the date picked by Balkan diplomats as likely for the Nazi move.

ENTER FROM RUMANIA

It was presumed that the German troops would enter from across the border from Rumania where they have been massed in numbers estimated as high as 500,000 in recent days.

The information did not specify the objective of the Nazi move. However, it has been made plain by advices from Balkan capitals

Gives U.S. Advice

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Senator Carter Glass, 83 years old Saturday, celebrated by saying in an interview that the United States navy should be sent "over to blast hell out of Germany." The Virginia Democrat said "my complaint is we're not moving fast enough" in aiding Great Britain.

Highlights Of F.D.R. Message

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—Some sentences from President Roosevelt's annual message to congress:

I address you at a moment unprecedented in the history of the Union. I use the word "unprecedented," because at no previous time has American security been so seriously threatened from without as it is today.

No realistic American can expect from a dictator's peace international generosity, or return of the true independence, or world disarmament, or freedom of expression, or freedom of religion—or even good business.

Let us say to the democracies: "We Americans are vitally concerned in your defence of freedom . . . we shall send you, in ever-increasing numbers, ships, planes, tanks, guns. This is our purpose and our pledge."

The first phase of the invasion of this hemisphere would not be the landing of regular troops. The necessary strategic points would be occupied by secret agents and their dupes—and great numbers of them are already here, and in Latin America.

As long as the aggressor nations maintain the offensive, they—not we—will choose the time and the place and the method of their attack.

We are committed to the proposition that principles of morality and considerations for our own security will never permit us to acquiesce in a peace dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers.

The immediate need is a swift and driving increase in our arma-

Greater Output To Assist Democracies Asked Of Congress

Urges United States' Pledge To Send Ever-Increasing Armaments To Free Nations Now Fighting Aggressors

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt told Congress today the United States faces an unprecedented "foreign peril" and demanded a "swift and driving increase in our armaments" both for defence and the use of fighting democracies abroad.

"The need of the moment," Mr. Roosevelt said in his annual message on the state of the union, "is that our actions and our policy should be devoted primarily—almost exclusively—to meeting this foreign peril. For all our domestic problems are now a part of the great emergency."

In ringing terms, he called for full aid for the nations fighting "gallantly . . . in four continents."

He said:

"Let us say to the democracies 'we Americans are vitally concerned in your defence of freedom. We are putting forth our energies, our resources and our organizing powers to give you the strength to regain and maintain a free world. We shall send you, in ever-increasing numbers, ships, planes, tanks, guns. This is our purpose and our pledge.' "

Complete text of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's annual message to the United States Congress will be found on page 16.

Asks Funds To Assist Democracies

Appearing before a joint session of House of Representatives and Senate in the great house chamber, the President said he would ask Congress for "greatly increased new appropriations" to carry on the defence program.

"I also ask this Congress," he said, "for authority and for funds sufficient to manufacture additional munitions and war supplies of many kinds, to be turned over to those nations which are now in actual war with aggressor nations."

Mr. Roosevelt did not list the nations to receive help through his lease-lend plan, but in his recent fireside talk on defence he referred specifically to Britain, China and Greece.

"Such aid is not an act of war," Mr. Roosevelt said, "even if a dictator should unilaterally proclaim it so to be."

Not To Be Intimidated By Dictators

In fulfillment of the purpose of extending aid, the President also declared, the nation "will not be intimidated by the threats of dictators that they will regard as a breach of international law and as an act of war our aid to the democracies which dare to resist their aggression."

"When the dictators are ready to make war upon us, they will not wait for an act of war on our part," he continued. "They did not wait for Norway or Belgium or the Netherlands to commit an act of war."

Mr. Roosevelt set forward in three points what he described as "our national policy" in this time of "serious danger" and he also proclaimed the principles of "four essential human freedoms" to which "we look forward" in "the future days."

NATIONAL POLICY

The "national policy" the president stated as:

"First, by an impressive expression of the public will and without regard to partisanship, we are committed to all-inclusive national defence.

"Second, by an impressive expression of the public will and without regard to partisanship, we are committed to full support of all those resolute peoples, everywhere, who are resisting aggression and are thereby keeping war away from our hemisphere. By this support, we express our determination that the democratic cause shall prevail; and we strengthen the defence and security of our own nation.

"Third, by an impressive expression of the public will and without regard to partisanship, we are committed to the proposition that principles of morality and considerations for our own security will never permit us to acquiesce in a peace dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers. We know that enduring peace cannot be bought at the cost of other people's freedom."

HUMAN FREEDOMS

The "four essential human freedoms" were described by the President as "the very antithesis of the so-called new order of tyranny

British Advance Units Drive On To Tobruk After Capture Of Bardia By Australians

at Egyptian outposts as the Italians were forced back into Libya, and casualties have been estimated at 15,000.

British authorities said the Royal Air Force frustrated what was believed to be an 11th-hour attempt to save Gen. Bergonzoli, known to the British as "Electric Whiskers," because of his bristling beard, and other high officers from capture.

PLANES ARE RIDDLED

Five Italian planes landed in Bardia Friday night, supposedly to carry the officers away, but were so riddled by R.A.F. machine gun fire they were unable to take off again.

Dispatches from the front after the last resistance at Bardia collapsed said the first break in the strong arc of Italian defences was made by tanks, running interference for Australian infantrymen, after a thunderous bombardment from air, sea and land.

By late Friday the Australian shock troops had punched a dent two miles deep into the defence system. Nearly 6,000 prisoners were taken the first day.

HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING

The fighting was hand-to-hand the second day, with the Australians charging blockhouses, detonating land mines laid as tank traps, and smashing to the outskirts of the town.

That night barbed wire was cut to clear the way for the final assault, and during the morning resistance was reduced to scatter hold-out forces in the last few strong points.

Disarmed Italians were formed into long lines, guarded by an average of one sentry to about 500 prisoners, for the trip back to concentration camps, an Associated Press correspondent who witnessed the surrender reported.

He said none tried to escape many looked dejected, but some who marched away under guard sang Neopolitan airs.

ROUTED FROM HIDEOUTS

The Australians sang a different tune. They marched into position and sometimes charged into Italian fire shouting the chorus of "We're off to see the Wizard, the wonderful Wizard of Oz."

The correspondent reported that many of the Italians had to be rooted from gullies and caves where they took shelter in the last minutes of the fighting. Five hundred squeezed into one redoubt, he said, and 2,000 filed out of a cave at the command of a single Australian officer and five infantrymen armed with rifles and one Bren gun.

Italians were "prepared" by their own radio yesterday for news of the fall of Bardia by Giovanni Ansaldo, authoritative Fascist editor.

"If Bardia has fallen, this will be a new British success—local if you like—but still a considerable one," he said.

Italian newspapers claimed, however, that the British drive west into Libya had failed in its purpose, which they said was to break Italian morale.

THREAT ELIMINATED

A military spokesman in London, where it was reported that Free French troops served with the British in the attack, interpreted the fall of Bardia as evidence that the threat of Italian invasion of Egypt had been eliminated.

Without Bardia, the spokesman said, the nearest Italians would be based at Tobruk, 80 miles from the Egyptian frontier.

The siege of Bardia lasted 20 days, during which the fortified town was hammered relentlessly by artillery fire, fire from the Royal Navy which was riding off-shore and bombs from R.A.F. planes.

Its capture gives British forces a usable port at which to land supplies and further reinforcements from the sea, avoiding the long and tedious overland haul. Also, Bardia has one of the best water supplies in the Libyan desert.

The final hours of the siege were described by observers as tremendously violent. The pace of the British firing grew in intensity until Italian artillery was silenced. Then the fleet sailed away on some other mission, perhaps to start a bombardment of Tobruk which already has been subjected to heavy aerial attacks.

Every weapon the British and Australians could get their hands on, including guns and even stones, was used. The stones were thrown at land mines to explode them before the final drive.

ROME, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The Italian high command reported today that "more strongholds on the Bardia front have fallen into British hands in Libya," but did not mention the fall of Bardia itself.

The high command's communique claimed the strongholds fell only "after strenuous resistance by our troops who inflicted considerable losses on the enemy."

Close Blockade Of Tobruk Set Up

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Military circles declared today that mechanized patrols have established a "close blockade" of Italian forces at Tobruk, Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's next Libyan defence line 70 miles west of fallen Bardia.

These sources declined to say, however, whether Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell intended to extend his drive into an effort to drive the Italians entirely out of Libya.

British advance patrols were said to be operating south of Tobruk to guard against any Italian attempt to counter-attack against the British wedge in eastern Libya.

"Of course," it was said in these circles, "the more Italian forces we defeat, the better for us."

They listed these factors, however, as indicating Gen. Wavell might not follow up his victories with a further main drive into Libya:

1—Because his principal mission is completed in driving the Italians out of Egypt.

2—Because much of Graziani's army has been captured.

3—Because the British forces already are operating 120 miles ahead of their principal western Egyptian base at Matruh.

BULGARIA TO BE OCCUPIED BY NAZI ARMS

that Germany has at least two possible movements. One would be a direct push on to Salonika which would bring Nazi troops to the coast of the vital Aegean sea. The other would be to bring pressure on Greece to end her war against Italy under threat of German invasion and to bring pressure on Turkey to remain neutral under the same threat.

Russia's position in this situation is not clear. Some Balkan reports, however, have suggested that Germany has promised Russia a free hand in Finland in return for Soviet non-intervention in the Balkans.

The information reaching British United Press did not indicate whether King Boris of Bulgaria participated in the German-Bulgarian negotiations. It was reported Saturday night from Sofia that he might have left for Germany. However, this was denied flatly by official quarters in Bulgaria and no confirmation came from official sources in Germany or elsewhere.

Deny Filoff Has Seen Ribbentrop

SOFIA, Jan. 6.—(BUP)—Highest official sources today denied that Premier Bogdan Filoff has "yet" seen German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

A government source said:

"It is absolutely false that Germany has given Bulgaria an ultimatum or made demands upon Bulgaria either through Filoff or any other channel."

Ominous Silence In Nazi Quarters

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—(AP)—This week began in Berlin with a continuance of that ominous silence in "authoritative quarters" noticeable last week, which strikingly reminded old timers among foreign correspondents of similar periods of silence such as that preceding the beginning of the air battle of London last August.

Coupled with refusals to discuss Balkan troop movements were the usual denials, for instance the statement that "Balkan reports that German troops will occupy Bulgaria peacefully Jan. 8 are too silly for rejoinder; reports of King Boris III of Bulgaria coming to Germany are without foundation."

More revealing was the reply to a question concerning political talks of Bulgarian Premier Bogdan Philoff in Germany.

"We fail to see either a compelling reason or evidence of any planning for such talks," the authorized sources said.

Many correspondents received the impression that this remark was designed to suggest the Bulgarian question already is settled.

The general impression the foreign observer gains is that German authorities rather welcome the welter of rumors and consider it a screen behind which to [illegible] their plans for whatever may be in the offing.

R.A.F. PLANES ATTACK SHIPS IN BREST PORT

Docks Battered By Many Sticks Of Bombs Says Air Ministry

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Royal Air Force bombers attacked shipping tied up at Brest, German-occupied France, and an enemy airdrome just before dusk last night, the air ministry announced today.

The air ministry news service said the Brest docks were "again battered by many sticks of bombs" in the twilight raid.

German fighter planes were circling over the port when the Blenheim bombers arrived, the news service said, but the Blenheims "drove them off and then did their bombing." One German Messerschmitt fighter was shot down.

The ground defences put up an "immense barrage." One Blenheim was almost turned over by a blast from an anti-aircraft shell bursting immediately beneath it, but all the British planes returned safely.

A destroyer in the harbor was hit by air bombs in another attack Saturday.

In further offensive operations yesterday, the air ministry said two German supply ships were hit by R.A.F. bombers off the southwest coast of Norway.

Hamburg, the frequently-raided German port, was attacked again over the weekend, the air ministry announced, adding that fires were later observed there.

which the dictators seek to create with the crash of a bomb."

He described these "freedoms" as:

"The second is freedom of every person to worship God in his own way—everywhere in the world.

"The third is freedom from want—which, translated into world terms, means economic understandings which will secure to every nation a healthy peace time life for its inhabitants—everywhere in the world.

"The fourth is freedom from fear—which translated into world terms, means a world-wide reduction of armaments to such a point and in such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of physical aggression against any neighbor—anywhere in the world."

WARNS ON APPEASEMENT

In terse phrases, the President warned against appeasement.

"As a nation we may take pride in the fact that we are soft-hearted," he said, "but we cannot afford to be soft-headed.

"We must always be wary of those who with sounding brass and tinkling cymbal preach the 'ism' of appeasement.

"We must especially beware of that small group of selfish men who would clip the wings of the American eagle in order to feather their own nests."

To make the United States safe, Mr. Roosevelt said "the immediate need is a swift and driving increase in our armament production."

IS NOT SATISFIED

He reported that he is not satisfied with the progress thus far made and neither are the men he has put in charge of the program.

"None of us will be satisfied until the job is done," he declared.

Illustrating the status of the defence drive, Mr. Roosevelt said that "We are behind schedule in turning out finished airplanes; we are working day and night to solve the innumerable problems and to catch up. We are ahead of schedule in building warships; but we are working to get even further ahead of schedule."

After reviewing briefly America's participation in past wars, the president said he wanted to convey a "historic truth" that the United States as a nation has always "Maintained opposition to any attempt to lock us in behind an ancient Chinese wall, while the process of civilization went past."

OPPOSES ISOLATION

"Today, thinking of our children and their children," he said, "We oppose enforced isolation for ourselves or for any part of the Americas."

That determination was proved, he said, during the quarter century of wars following the French revolution.

While the Napoleonic struggles threatened interests of the United States because of French footholds in the West Indies and in Louisiana, and while the United States fought the war of 1812 to vindicate its right to peaceful trade, he said, it was clear that neither France nor Britain nor any other nation was aiming at "domination of the whole world."

The strength of the British fleet in the Atlantic, Mr. Roosevelt said, "has been" and "is still" a friendly strength.

OFFERS NO SECURITY

Now, the President said, "no realistic American can expect from a dictator's peace international generosity, or return of true independence, or world disarmament, or freedom of expression, or freedom of religion—or even good business."

"Such a peace," he said, "would bring no security for us or for our neighbors."

All current domestic problems, the President said, are linked to the emergency. He made several recommendations of an entirely domestic character.

As examples of the "many subjects connected with our social economy" which "call for immediate improvement" Mr. Roosevelt gave:

"Extension of coverage of old-age pensions and unemployment insurance to more citizens.

"Widening of opportunities for adequate medical care.

"Planning of an improved system to permit persons deserving or needing gainful employment to obtain it.

"Those who man our defences and those behind them who build our defences," the president said, "must have the stamina and courage which come from an unshakable belief in the manner of life which they are defending.

"The mighty action which we are calling for cannot be based on a disregard of all things worth fighting for."

In a move to get "more rapid and decisive action," Prime Minister Churchill today announced the appointment of three British cabinet committees, headed by three of his ministers pictured above. Ernest Bevin, left, will head the committee in charge of production; Arthur Greenwood, centre, will be in charge of post-war reconstruction, while Sir Andrew Duncan, right, will be chairman of committee to handle imports.

ment production . . . I am not satisfied with the progress thus far made.

I shall ask this congress for greatly increased new appropriations and authorizations to carry on what we have begun.

I also ask this Congress for authority and for funds sufficient to manufacture additional munitions and war supplies of many kinds to be turned over to those nations which are now in actual war with aggressor nations.

The time is near when they will not be able to pay for them in ready cash. . . . I recommend that we make it possible for those nations to continue to obtain war materials in the United States, fitting their orders into our own program. Nearly all of their material would, if the time ever came, be useful for our defence.

Such aid is not an act of war, even if a dictator should unilaterally proclaim it so to be.

When the dictators are ready to make war upon us, they will not wait for an act of war on our part. They did not wait for Norway or Belgium or the Netherlands to commit an act of war.

I have called for personal sacrifice. . . . A part of the sacrifice means the payment of more money in taxes. In my budget message I recommend that a greater portion of this great defence program be paid for from taxation than we are paying today. No person should try, or be allowed, to get rich out of this program.

FACTORY PLAN FOR YOUTH IS DISCONTINUED

Dropped 10 Months Ago Officials Say, Replying To Labor

CALGARY, Jan. 6.—(CP)—The scheme by which graduates of the Dominion-provincial Youth Training plan were attached to factories for a period of two to three months as observers without pay, then were taken on as apprentices with wages, was dropped ten months ago, because officials feared exploitation might creep in, and because young men were needed for war industries.

So said J. H. Ross, head of the Dominion-provincial Youth Training plan at Calgary, explaining the program after a delegate at a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council Friday night, charged that graduates of the plan were being exploited.

Both Mr. Ross and Dr. W. G. Carpenter, principal of the Institute of Technology and Art said they had too few details on the assertions to make statements. They said, however, they were embarking on a vast, concentrated program to prepare young Albertans for work in war industries.

Tuesday, under a special youth training plan, Tech will swing into a 24-hour a day program.

Recently, Hon. E. C. Manning announced the Board of Industrial Relations was prepared to modify minimum wage regulations to permit apprentices to enter trades on a part or full time basis. The labor delegate Friday likened this to the youth training scheme which, he said, "placed youths in different places by letting them work six months for nothing. After being used for six months they were dropped. They were no more use after than before. It was just a matter of cheap labor."

CHANGES MADE IN U.K. CABINET TO AID OUTPUT

Three New Executive Groups Named To Get More Rapid Action

LONDON, Jan. 6—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill today named three new cabinet executive groups to take charge of production, imports and post-war reconstruction policy.

Ernest Bevin, minister of labor, will head a production committee; Sir Andrew Duncan, minister of supply, will be chairman of an imports committee and Arthur Greenwood, minister without portfolio, will preside over a committee charged with post-war problems.

REPLACES COUNCIL

The changes in the government machinery were described as aimed at "more rapid and decisive action."

Mr. Bevin's committee, which will replace the present production council, will include Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, Oliver Lyttleton, president of the board of trade, and Sir Andrew Duncan.

Sir Andrew Duncan's imports committee will include A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty; Lord Woolton, Minister of Food; Lord Beaverbrook, and Mr. Lyttleton.

This organization consists of the five ministers who are the nation's chief importers. Its duty will be to "animate and regulate the whole business of importation in accordance with the policy of the war cabinet."

REDUCES COMMITTEES

Mr. Churchill assumes responsibility for ensuring that the work of the imports and production executives corresponds with general policy.

A statement issued at 10 Downing Street said the arrangements had been made in hope "the very complicated affairs of government in wartime will be brought into a more simple and closely knit structure leading to a reduction in the number of subsidiary committees."

CO-ORDINATE WORK

Mr. Bevin's production committee will have charge of the "allocation of available resources of raw materials, production capacity, and labor, together with the fixing of priorities where necessary," the announcement said.

The work of these three committees, together with that of other cabinet committees, will continue to be "concerted and directed" by a committee of chairmen of committees under Sir John Anderson, Lord President of the Council.

"The Lord President's committee will advise the war cabinet generally on the movement of business in the executives and committees and on special questions remitted to it," the announcement explained.

Mr. Greenwood's reconstruction committee will be turned into a full-fledged ministry of the government "later on when the end of the war can be more clearly foreseen," Mr. Churchill promised.

DUKE OF YORK, NEW BATTLESHIP, NOW LAUNCHED

LONDON, Jan. 6.—(CP)—The Duke of York, fifth and last of Britain's new 35,000-ton King George V class of battleships, was disclosed today to have been launched last February, seven months ahead of schedule.

Pictures of the launching, just released, show the huge battleship was christened by Queen Elizabeth.

Other ships of the class, the King George VI, Prince of Wales, Jellicoe and Beatty, were disclosed to have been completed previously.

The announcement of the launching did not indicate whether the Duke of York had been commissioned and put in service with the fleet—a process which takes some time after launching.

There has been speculation from time to time during recent months that the new 35,000-ton battleships might already be with the fleet.

British authorities have announced they were building four still larger battleships, the Lion, the Temeraire and two others of 40,000 tons.

Today's War Moves

into Triplitania, unfitted for further offensive operations. That objective would seem to be the major British objective.

The British must take into consideration the possibility, however remote, that Germany will try to drive through Turkey toward Suez. If the Italian army in Libya were not demolished, a pincer movement against Suez from the west, co-operating with the German offensive from the east would be possible.

That is the reason why the fall of Bardia has such military value. It carries the British one step farther toward destruction of the Italian arm of the Suez pincer.

DECLINE IN MORALE

The fact that between 60,000 and 70,000 Italians have surrendered within a month, although British casualties seem inconsequential, indicates a grave decline in Italian morale. It is invariable for defeatism to spread through an army under such an impetus.

Marshal Graziani has that factor to face as a serious impediment against holding off the victorious British troops.

The Germans no longer maintain their nonchalant attitude toward Italy's declining combat spirit. The North African fighting, like the hostilities in Albania, was described at first in Berlin as of minor importance, having no bearing on the final outcome of the war.

DIRECT RELATIONSHIP

Thus there is direct relationship between the British successes in Libya and Germany's apparent plans to create a diversion in the Balkans. However reluctant Hitler has been to expand complications in southeastern Europe, he may now be forced to move in that area to keep his axis partner from falling, despite the danger of future trouble with Russia and Turkey.

Interpreting War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LATE March or April would seem by all military logic the correct time for Germany to make her promised grand smash at Britain, yet London, by Prime Minister Churchill's say-so, doubts that Hitler will or can wait that long to let loose his attempted knockout punch.

Unfavorable developments from the Nazi-Fascist viewpoint on many fronts are urging him to risk a mid-winter onslaught. Time is marching against the Axis.

Check of these 1941 developments since Hitler's thundering New Year forecast of victory this year.

Nazi-French relations are under increasingly heavy strain. Berlin does not deny that. A Hitler-Petain break is denied; but only continuing Berlin-Vichy diplomatic contracts in German-held Paris are cited to support the denial.

Since Hitler spoke, Italy's serious plight has been officially admitted by Rome action. Italy, in the two months since she marched against Greece, has become a German military liability, not an asset.

In Albania winter has closed down on the Northern Greek-Italian flank; but to the south the Greeks are still inching forward. Across the Mediterranean the British counter offensive into Italian Libya surges on.

Across the Atlantic President Roosevelt is making ready to submit to congress his plans to carry out his promise of United States win-the-war aid to Britain.

Britain's own war industries, despite Nazi bomubing, are reaching new delivery peaks.

Against all that, Germany claims greatly increased power by land, air and sea for a final smash at Britain. By every rule of reason, every day of delay due to weather or any other cause is dangerous. It sees the armament gap between Germany and Britain close by that much. It may drive Hitler to the desperate risks of a mid-winter invasion attempt.

Casualty List

LONDON, Jan. 6—(CP Cable)—The War Office's 115th casualty list issued Sunday night contains 215 names made up of 38 killed, 39 died, 32 wounded, eight died of wounds, 79 prisoners of war, eight died while prisoners and 11 safe.

NAZIS AGAIN TRY DAY RAID OVER LONDON

First Daylight Attack In Many Weeks Made On Empire Capital

LONDON, Jan. 6—(CP)—German raiders, following up a new over night fire bomb attack on London, raided the capital today in daylight and bombs were reported to have fallen in three districts.

By mid-afternoon the sirens had wailed three air raid alarms. The third was preceded by the sound of gunfire in some areas.

Until yesterday, when one alert sounded, there had not been a daylight alarm in London for many weeks. During today's second alarm, six bombs fell in one suburb, but caused no harm.

Although "many buildings were damaged and some persons killed" in the 4½-hour fire bomb attack last night, the government said the raid was not on a heavy scale and ended before midnight.

During today's second alarm, six bombs fell in one suburb, but caused no harm.

Some raiders were reported over Liverpool, the East Midlands and northwest and northeast England during afternoon and night but the government said there was no damage and few casualties. Saturday night's Nazi attacks were directed against a west England town. (The Germans claimed it was Avonmouth.)

GREEKS SCORE GAINS IN FACE ITALO ATTACKS

Considerable Advances Are Made Despite Sharp Counter-Attacks

ATHENS, Jan. 6—(AP)—"Considerable" Greek gains despite Italian counter-attacks at several points were reported today in dispatches from the coastal sector.

Italian resistance admittedly was sharp and the fighting was described as much more severe than in recent days, partly because of improving weather.

The Italians were pictured as making a determined stand to gain time for completing a new defence line to guard Valona, vital port for escape or reinforcement in southwestern Albania.

A Greek government spokesman's statement that Italian strategy is to "take advantage of weather conditions and fresh reinforcements from Italy to improve the situation or delay the Greek advance" was echoed by Italian prisoners, most of them fresh troops recently arrived from Italy.

The Greek air force was reported active in low-flying bombing and machine-gun attacks on Italian troops and gun emplacements.

The Italians were said to have lost heavily in counter attacks from the new positions to which they were forced yesterday after the Greeks cracked their previous fortified line north of Chimara.

LATE RESIDENT OF CITY FOUND DEAD IN HOME

CALGARY, Jan. 6—(CP)—Death of George Townsend, 26, of Hartell, who was found dead in his home near the Turner Valley oil town Friday, is being investigated by Coroner Dr. Ame. Ardiel of Okotoks and Turner Valley Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

A post-mortem was performed and stomach and brain have been sent to Edmonton for analysis. Mounted Police said Sunday investigation so far indicated natural causes in Townsend's death, but to make sure, the analysis was ordered. Dr. Ardiel has indicated no inquest would be held.

Born in Saskatchewan, Mr. Townsend resided in Regina for some years, then was transferred to Edmonton by the fruit company for which he then worked. He lived in Edmonton for two years prior to a few months ago, when he came to Hartell to live. He was a visitor to Edmonton Dec. 28, driving back to Turner Valley last Monday.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Townsend of Big Prairie, west of Carstairs, and a sister, Mrs. P. Horne, Calgary.

Supt. R. E. Mercer, head of the criminal investigation branch of the R.C.M.P. for Alberta, stated Monday that the report of the provincial analyst has not yet been received in the investigation being made into the Townsend death.

This report is expected to be received in a day or two, the superintendent said.

Cold Weather In France Is Fatal To Many Persons

VICHY, Jan. 6.—(AP)—At least 12 persons were reported killed by cold weather in the Auvergne district alone as a snow storm Sunday was followed by a drop in temperature in unoccupied France.

Snow reached 12 feet in the mountain areas and the temperature dropped to 20 degrees below zero.

(Lisbon reports said that city and North Portugal again shivered under unseasonable cold. Meteorologists predicted colder weather.)

RED MINISTERS HURRY HOME TO MAKE REPORTS

Envoys In Balkans Will Tell Kremlin Of Nazi Troop Movements

By ROBERT B. PARKER, JR.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Soviet Russia's ministers to Bulgaria, Yugoshavia, Rumania and Hungary sped to Moscow today reportedly for Kremlin consultations on Germany's ever-increasing military might in the Balkans.

The summoning of the envoys was taken here as the first definite evidence the Russians have given of their interest in the large scale German troop movements of the last week.

In some Soviet circles in the Balkans it was reported Moscow already has warned Berlin against a "step which might seriously endanger good relations" between Russia and Germany and Soviet quarters in Belgrade said summoning of the ministers definitely was linked with the "new military developments in Rumania and Hungary."

(Russian troops have been reported massed on the Bessarabian border, next to Rumania.)

Germany's Balkan force (estimated by some observers at as high as 600,000 men) was said to be consolidating its position along the frontier with Russia, along the Danube facing Bulgaria and in cities only a few miles from Yugoslavia.

Bulgaria, where the Bulgarian Communist party distributed leaflets saying "Soviet Russia will not allow a single German soldier to set foot on Bulgaria," often has been mentioned as a possible path for a German drive on the Dardanelles or Greece. Bulgaria's neighbor, Yugoslavia, was pictured as uncomfortable over this possibility but German quarters in Belgrade asserted Yugoslavia would be treated as "another Sweden if she behaved."

Reports reaching Ruse, Bulgaria, across the Danube from Giurgiu, Rumania, said the German troops had been forced to contend with disorders which had their inception in widespread sabotage by railroad workers in the so-called "Communist wing" of the Rumanian Iron Guard.

Strong Nazi motorized columns were said to have reached Giurgiu with considerable quantities of bridge-building equipment and a large corps of engineers. These reports said the Rumanian military was ordered to place an especially heavy guard on all bridges and railroad authorities were told by the Germans to keep the line from Bucharest to Constanta, Rumania's Black Sea port, in perfect condition for possible emergency use.

The Rumanians were reported to have mined the Danube at Galatz, scene of several frontier clashes between Rumanians and Russians, and under German direction were said to have begun the work of converting the old Danube outlet from Cerna-Voda to Constanta into a navigable canal.

Diplomatic circles said they regarded the latter development as indirect confirmation of persistent reports the Russians had seized the Sulina canal, the only navigable river outlet, which is far south of the Russian frontier in Rumania.

(A report published in the Turkish press said Germany had moved troops into the Balkans because she feared a British attack from that direction. Italy, these reports, said, was regarded as good as out of the war.)

ELEVEN KILLED WHEN U.S. NAVY PLANE CRASHES

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Eleven United States navy fliers were killed Saturday night in the flaming wreckage of a naval transport plane which crashed in the rugged mountain country 35 miles southeast of here.

The two-motored transport left Big Spring, Tex., Saturday with four naval fliers who had parachuted to safety from a storm-tossed patrol bomber near La Mesa, Texas, Thursday, three members of a board named to inquire into the accident there, and four other navy fliers.

The transport crashed during a rainstorm on a slope of Mother Grundy Peak. Navy officials said visibility was slight because of a dense fog.

Reaching the scene Sunday morning, searchers were forced to clear away brush to make a trail up the almost inaccessible spot where the transport crashed and burned.

The dead:

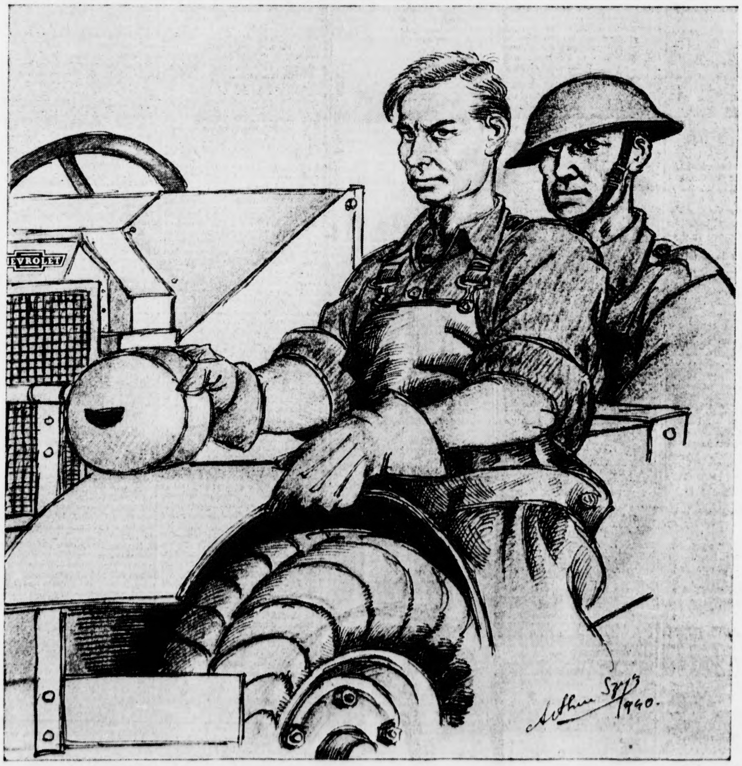
Bodies Located

ATLIN, B.C., Jan. 6—(CP)—The body of Lawrence Pettegrew, 24, of Biggar, Sask., was recovered Sunday from Atlin lake where he and Bob Smith, 22, of Vancouver, were drowned on Friday while skating on newly-formed ice.

Pettegrew's body was recovered near the spot where a dragging party discovered Smith's body Saturday.

Work for Victory... Lend to Win!



DAY and night in shifts 'round the clock, General Motors' men build the trucks to carry our boys in battle dress up the road to Victory.

Gladly the tasks which mean a shorter war, a quicker peace, are thus assumed by the men and women of all Canada. Backing what they build with what they earn, workers in every field are serving doubly by saving wisely and lending timely cash to the war chest of an Empire destined to be free.

This tide of wealth, loaned to the government, flows back again to keep chimneys smoking, wheels turning, hands and hearts dedicated to victory.

Well Done Australia

The Australians at Bardia have kept the fine tradition established by the Anzacs in Gallipoli. With the added satisfaction that this time they won; instead of fighting gloriously but vainly in a hopeless position. To them goes the credit for breaking through the well-prepared defences, capturing the desert stronghold built as a base for the attack upon Egypt, and gathering in something more than 25,000 prisoners, with large stores of equipment and supplies.

The Italian forces at Bardia did not throw in the sponge after a pretended resistance. They fought twenty days and nights continuously, under ceaseless bombardment from land, sea and air; in circumstances which must have suggested that fighting could do no more than delay the collapse of the Fascist power in North Africa. Ordered by Mussolini to hold the place or die, they at least held it long after there was any obvious military reason to do so. The Australians did not have a walk-over at Bardia. They fought a real battle and won, against an enemy well-entrenched, well-armed, probably as numerous as themselves, and fighting more resolutely than Italians have fought elsewhere during the present war.

Good War Work

A good many Canadian business concerns are using advertising space in the newspapers—or time on the air—to urge the buying of war savings stamps and certificates. A conspicuous example is the General Motors company, which is running large advertisements in daily newspapers across the Dominion, devoted entirely to this object. The advertisements are very attractive in appearance, and the appeal to readers is presented in a brief, appropriate and convincing way.

This is a bit of national service which should not go without due recognition. It costs the advertisers money, which they might use for business purposes or add to profits, but which they are spending to strengthen the country's war effort at the crucial point. How great this effort can be, depends upon how much money the public lend to their Government—and pay to it as taxation. Whoever helps at his own expense to increase the volume of war funds is deserving of thanks.

It is an open secret that the sales of certificates and stamps have not been bringing in as large an amount, month by month, as was hoped for. An energetic campaign is under way to increase sales, and to make the regular buying of these securities a common practice on the part of all who are able to spare something from their earnings. Commercial institutions which help to give publicity to the cause are doing good work, and there is every reason to suppose it will be effective.

Eire To Berlin

Berlin of course came through with the inevitable explanation; the bombs dropped in Eire were either "English" or "imaginary." The world would have wondered if it had said anything else. Committing crimes and blaming them on the "English" has been a standard part of Nazi strategy ever since one of its assassin boats sank the Athenia two hours before war was declared. In Poland, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, the excuse was the same; the unarmed "English" were plotting evil to the peaceful Reich, and aimed to use these as bases from which to launch attacks—with airplanes which did not exist and an army that had not yet been recruited, drilled and armed. The latest fiction is in strict keeping with this long tradition of falsehood. Herr Goebbels' inventive faculty evidently ceased from its labors when it hatched this "finesse" dodge a year and a half ago. He should try to think up something else, for his "blame England" no longer deceives anybody.

It does not deceive the Government of Eire, which has definitely identified the bombs and bombers, claimed damage payments, and demanded that the outrages cease. This is a polite way of telling Berlin it has lied. It would amount to an ultimatum if the countries were on a par in military strength. The next logical step—if Berlin refuses to admit the crime, acknowledge the falsehood, pay damages and promise to stop the raids—would be to hand the German minister to Eire his passports and tell him to get out.

And—unless reparation is made in these ways—the Government of Eire will have to reconsider the question of neutrality. If its people are to be killed and their property destroyed at the Nazi will, any hope of safety through neutrality has obviously faded out. And, it must be plain even to Mr. De Valera, Eire might as well fight back as cringe under Nazi blows.

The Sirois Report

The Sirois report on the relations between the Dominion and the provinces is the product of two and a half years of patient research and careful study by four men of outstanding ability and exceptional qualifications for the task. It is not therefore a document to be lightly condemned by anyone who seriously cares about the facts, the future of Canada, or his own claim to responsibility. The presumption in such a case has to be that the recommendations of the commissioners are sound, unless and until the contrary is shown conclusively.

Federal and provincial representatives are to meet at Ottawa shortly to discuss these recommendations. Which, it is to be hoped, means the delegates are not going to discuss them so much as study them together, without preconceived bias and with a sincere desire to measure their worth against a continuance of the present Dominion-provincial set-up. That, it must be remembered is the alternative—to carry on as at present. The report embodies the only general readjustment now before the country, and the only one that could be put before the country this year or next year or the year after.

The outcome of the conference will necessarily shape to a very large degree the opinions and the attitude of the public to the proposed changes. For, however desirable that might be, it is absurd to suppose people generally have made the report a subject of exhaustive study in the light of all the information required for such a study.

The average Canadian is not a constitutional authority, and does not profess or aspire to pose as one. He pays certain men to look after his interests in this as in other public matters. He has paid the commissioners to prepare this series of recommendations. He is paying ministers and officials at Ottawa and at nine provincial capitals to know and to tell him if or where the commissioners have erred. For the time he is bound in common sense to suppose the commissioners are right in their proposals. And he will and should abandon that supposition only if the concensus of opinion at the conference is that they are wrong.

Count von Luckner, of "Seeadler" fame in the days of the former war, is said to be in command of one of the German raiders in the Pacific. As one of the raider captains there seems to have some regard for human life, the report may be correct. It is to be hoped it is. Luckner gained a reputation in the other war for showing respect to sea law and the claims of humanity. He was about the only one of von Tirpitz' commerce destroyers who gained such a reputation, and came to be regarded in Allied countries as having something of the instincts of a sportsman. That perhaps explains why he was not enrolled under Hitler as a naval commander, and is serving now, if he is serving, as a volunteer.

The Saturday Night Review

Harold L. Weir

This country has a great and good friend in Franklin Delano Roosevelt who, last Sunday night, enunciated from the White House the second declaration of independence issued by the United States in one hundred and sixty-four years.

The first declaration was signed by members of the continental congress in Philadelphia on July 4, 1776, and announced the separation of the United States from the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The second declaration was spoken by President Roosevelt and announced the final and ultimate condemnation by the United States of all those forces and doctrines which would enslave mankind.

It was a magnificent document that will go down in history as a masterpiece of plain speaking and a sublime exposition of the principle of human freedom.

That President Roosevelt spoke for the great majority of his countrymen is abundantly proved by the reactions that followed his radio address.

The great New York newspapers which had opposed his re-election, notably the powerful New York Times, supported his manifesto vigorously.

All over the country a tremendous salvo of applause went up from editors, statesmen, shopkeepers, farmers and businessmen.

Alfred Emmanuel Smith, who walked out of the Democratic party in 1936 and kept going in 1940, endorsed the President's defense broadcast without qualification and said he favored American participation in the war if such action was necessary to ensure Hitler's defeat.

For eight years, Former-Governor Smith has been Roosevelt's most bitter foe. This week he praised the President for what he called a "very courageous and straight-hitting speech."

General Robert E. Wood summed up the President's statement with a paradox, calling it "virtually a declaration of undeclared war."

Orville S. McPherson, publisher of the Kansas City Journal, said that in view of Roosevelt's declaration, the existence of such organizations as the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies might prove an embarrassment.

Next day, William Allen White conceived it his duty, as a good American, to resign from the chairmanship of that body, holding that his views did not go far enough in the emergency described by the President.

Somewhat sourly, Senator Rush D. Holt of West Virginia, recently defeated as a candidate to succeed himself, declared in the Senate that the strategy of the American administration was to provoke the Axis powers into a declaration of war upon the United States.

It was putting the situation boldly. But it was true. And every American knew it.

After last Sunday night, there was no doubt in the mind of any American that the towering figure in the White House had come to the conclusion that war was inevitable and that his duty lay only in postponing it to the most favorable moment without embarrassing or encumbering the efforts of America's front-line defenders in the British Isles.

And all America applauded him. Let us remember that. Let us remember it in our prayers. Let us remember it with thanks to God who through all these stormy years has kept the American heart generous and noble and the American nature sweet.

To go from the sublime to the ridiculous let's consider Italy and the Italians for a moment.

In view of the expected and certain Italian collapse, it has become fashionable to modify our criticism of these people whom we have begun to paint as rather delightful souls who have been led, protestingly, into bad habits by the big, bad Duce.

All this may be so. I would not be so stupid as to think or say that all the Italians are men of ill-will or cowardly or murderous at heart. Personally, I have known some excellent Italians, both in and out of the bootlegging business.

But whenever our hysterical minds get into the grip of this revulsion of feeling and our obedient mouths start lavishing praises on these poor deluded folk, I can't help thinking about the Mussolini boys, two average, wholesome, Italian lads, and all the fun they had in Ethiopia.

Both Vittorio and Bruno attended the frolic in that unhappy country and both served as bombers. Vittorio wrote a book about it.

The title of this book doesn't indicate its real flavor. Vittorio called it "Wings Over Ambe" or something like that, but actually in style and tone, it should have been the "Innocents Abroad."

Both boys found the Abyssinia adventure amusing, but Vittorio liked it even better than Bruno. Vittorio is evidently the lively one, as Jonas Chuzzlewit said, and in Abyssinia he had the time of his life.

He was especially fond of incendiary bombs, such as may be falling any day now on Rome, and he made a note of it.

"Incendiary bombs satisfy," he says in his book. "At least one sees fire and smoke. . . . We carefully burned that zone, but there were no more people."

He told of one side-splitting little incident, you may remember, and it was widely reprinted at the time.

"Here were about one thousand persons trying to escape," wrote this young sportsman, "then, bung! In less than no time the plain is depopulated.

"I still have in mind a group of Gallas blossoming like a rose after I had dropped bombs on them. It was highly amusing."

Of course, there were moments of boredom in Vittorio's life. You can't always snuff out a thousand lives at a time nor

The Passing Show

By J. S. Cowper

We are so accustomed to regard the movie industry as a sure money-maker that it may surprise some folk to learn that Hollywood has been hard hit by the war in Europe.

Walt Disney Productions in announcing a net loss of $1,259,798 for last year says the difference between that and the previous year when a profit of $1,250,130 net profit was made, is due to the disruption of foreign markets by the war.

It isn't only Charlie Chaplin's "The Great Dictator" and such like anti-Nazi films that are banned in Europe and in countries that fear to give offence to the dictators; in most of the countries dominated by the Axis powers release of any American picture is forbidden. "Guns instead of movies" is the purpose.

Easy Money, Gals!

Any of the gals who want easy lucrative employment in these hard days should consider the possibilities of the alimoniac industry.

Actor Edmund Lowe was ordered the other day to his latest wife $1,250 a month interim alimony, pending the hearing of her suit for divorce. The lady asked $2,000 a month, pleading that she was allowed $1,400 a month alimony by her former husband at the time she married Mr. Lowe, nearly five years ago.

There's many a poor girl would marry a handsome, entertaining chap like Edmund for $1,000 a month for life or less.

Jumbles of History

Having a history must help a country in time of stress, as it helps a man to know he had useful ancestors. All England is holy land to the historian. I recall, as a youth, bicycling through England, stopping one night at an inn in a village called Chipping Norton, near Oxford. Some of the rustics cast sceptical glances as I told them their place was named as the Marketplace of the Northmen; that it was mentioned in the Domesday Book; that King Canute once fought a battle there, and in the time of the first James it sent two members to parliament.

The war in the Greek peninsula revives many memories. Argyrokastron, as its name suggests, was once a silver city. An A.P. despatch says the old silver crafts are still carried on there, though the mines must long ago have been worked out.

Silver played its part in the defeat of Xerxes at Salamis. The Persians had overrun Leonidas and his three hundred brave men at Thermopylae, but they met their doom in the sea-fight off Salamis. Byron celebrates it in a glowing verse:

A king sat on the rocky brow
That looks o'er sea-born Salamis;
His ships in thousands lay below
And men, in nations—all were his.
He counted them at break of day;
But when the sun set, where were they?

It was the city's share of the profits of the silver mines outside Athens, leased to private operators, that built the fleet which saved western civilization from the invading Persians.

The huge map that Mussolini caused to be erected in a public square in Rome, showing Greece as part of the old Roman (and new Italian) Empire didn't go back far enough. The Greeks can recall the time when Plato and Pythagoras lived and taught in the cities of Magna Graecia—now southern Italy and Sicily.

In The Tanglefoot

Membership in the Communist party isn't a thing to be lightly assumed or easily got rid of, according to the testimony of Dr. Grebanier, a teacher at Brooklyn College. Dr. Grebanier testified at an enquiry that he and several other teachers joined the Communist party a few years ago. His required dues and contributions averaged over $500 a year, or more than ten per cent of his salary. On one occasion he had to borrow from a bank to meet his dues "as the Communist party does not permit its members to be in arrears."

When in the spring of 1938 he wished to resign, his letter of resignation was torn up by the Brooklyn unit, and he was told that a member cannot resign—he can only be expelled.

After sending in further letters of resignation, he received one day his "expulsion order" which stated: "In disseminating the poisonous ideas of Trotsky, fascist ideas, you have become a counter-revolutionary enemy of the working class and of the party."

To be expelled from a movement after one has resigned is a bit of droll humor, almost as odd as the Communist effort to achieve a democratic front by an alliance with Herr Hitler.

Expectoration

Editor, Bulletin: I am up in arms about this spitting in public places. No one is safe walking Edmonton streets. We do not have to worry about bombs, but what about the fifth column leaving millions of T.B. and other germs for all to pick up. Why doesn't someone do something?

Dangerous For Dogs

Editor, Bulletin: When people have turkeys, chickens, etc., they should not throw the bones where dogs and cats might get them. Do not give bones from fowls to their own pets.

Many dogs die in agony from eating bones of chickens and turkeys. Even putting the bones in garbage cans is dangerous as many dogs hunt around them for food.

Brave Italians

Editor Bulletin: I have read the recent letter by "Another Italian" with great interest, and I agree with him heartily. There has been too much loose talk about the cowardice of the Italian people. The Italians are no more cowards than other people. They have been badly defeated in battle, but so were the French and the Poles, and certainly nobody would accuse the French and Polish peoples of cowardice.

Armies are defeated for a variety of reasons, such as lack of arms, bad leadership and poor morale. I believe the latter reason explains the Italian debacle today. The Italians are better armed than the Greeks, and their officers have had more experience in warfare in recent years than the Greek officers.

The Italians outnumber the British forces in Africa. But Italian morale is at a very low ebb. Twenty years of Fascism have disillusioned the Italian people. It is significant that after the fall of Koritza, Italian prisoners in Greece sang "Bandera Rossa," the old Italian song of freedom. Where did young Italians, grown to manhood under Fascist rule, learn to sing the brave, old song? Is it not possible that many Germans still sing the old German songs of freedom in secret?

Employed Wives

Editor, Bulletin: Regarding the "blundering housemaid"; according to Housewife, we cause more damage than we are worth.

Perhaps a great number of girls would not be causing interminable expense if some married women left jobs they are clinging to and did their own housework.

Of course there are some married women who do need the work. But there are great numbers who shirk their duties at home for luxuries. They want extra luxuries when some of us incompetent (incompetent because trained for other vocations) can not have necessities.

Maybe more girls would train for housework if the profession were lifted from its low standard. But who voluntarily steps into a scrub girl's garb?

The Camden Courier-Post and New York World-Telegram spell it "Bug Bug."

And the Baltimore Evening Sun, a paper of fine old liberal traditions, splits the difference and spells it—"Buqbuq."

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The U.S.A. and The Triple Axis

The attitude taken by the Axis powers throws light on the meaning and consequences of the policy of supporting Great Britain.

Last summer the United States government gave Great Britain fifty fighting ships and entered into an agreement about naval bases and the British fleet which in effect established a joint naval control in the western Atlantic. On this unneutral action there was no official protest in Berlin or Rome; on the contrary, there were even newspaper articles professing admiration for our cold realism in looking after our interests. Yet only a few weeks ago when there were rumors that the United States might requisition idle merchant ships tied up in American harbors, there was an official warning from Berlin that this would mean war. This warning was followed by a warning that the United States must not consider allowing merchant ships to go to ports in neutral Eire—curious warning, indeed, since nothing had been said here about allowing ships to go to Eire.

Thus the handing over of the war vessels was ignored as of on consequence. But on the basis of mere rumors there are now threats of war over some merchant ships and over the possibility, which no one here had heard seriously discussed, of letting ships ply between neutral Irish and neutral American ports.

The question is why it suited the Axis to be complacent about the destroyers and why the Axis has now suddenly begun to use war-like threats over mere rumors about intrinsically less serious American acts. A full answer to that question would almost certainly explain many things and it is important that we should seek the answer.

It is evident that when the Axis ignored the destroyer deal, Hitler was convinced that he could conquer Great Britain before the promises of American support, made by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Willkie, could be made good. The great air battles of early September changed the situation, proving that Britain could not be conquered by a quick knockout blow. This meant that the war would go on and that the American armament program would be given some time to produce substantial results. Immediately, Hitler changed his policy toward the United States from one of ignoring us to one of threatening us. Within a fortnight after the demonstrated failure to knock out Britain in early September, he mounted the triple alliance with Japan and Italy in a spectacular ceremony in Berlin. From Tokyo, Rome and Berlin we were told by official spokesmen that if the triple alliance deemed our aid to Britain important—that is, effective—we should be attacked.

This threat was not merely verbal. Japan began to move ominously and ostentatiously around the Phillippines, toward the Netherlands Indies and Singapore. Hitler undertook the negotiations with Laval which, if they had succeeded, would have given him the French fleet and the French bases not only in the Mediterranean but on the Atlantic Ocean. Simultaneously, he negotiated with General Franco backing up his negotiations with the armored divisions on the Spanish frontier which can overrun, whenever he issues the order, not only Spain but Portugal. The outcome of all this is still very uncertain but what is not uncertain is that a Nazi incursion into Spain and Portugal would also bring the Axis to the Atlantic Ocean and would raise at once the grave question of the control of the Azores, the Canaries, the Cape Verde Islands—the strategic stepping-stones in mid-Atlantic from Europe to the Western Hemisphere. Finally, Hitler dropped a few stray bombs on neutral Ireland just as a reminder perhaps that Ireland was already well within reach not only of his submarines but of his air force.

Thus the signing of the pact of the triple Axis on Sept. 27 has been followed by a series of military movements—some considerable and some feints and threats—which are clearly related to the avowed purpose of the pact. The purpose of the pact is to threaten us with war in the two oceans at once. The moves made since that pact was signed—the moves by the Japanese toward Singapore, by the Nazis toward the French, Spanish, Portuguese and Irish bases on the Atlantic—are related in the systematic plan to establish the foundation of their sea power in both oceans.

This plan cannot succeed if Great Britain is effectively supported by the United States. For the combined sea power of Britain and the United States is greater than twice the sea power of the two aggressors and far superior to that of the triple Axis. It is, therefore, not in the interest of the tripel Axis to force us into the war. For they know that in conjunction with the British Navy and its bases our existing naval power is already immense and that our capacity to produce arms and to take other measures would be multiplied many times if they pushed us from neutrality into war. But it is their vital interest to prevent us from giving Britain effective aid by measures short of war.

The policy they have adopted since the end of September in order to reduce the effectiveness of our aid to Britain is to make threats and gestures designed to convince us that effective aid is not an alternative to war but the road to war. They did not bother about the destroyers, though actually that was much the most unneutral act we have done, beacues they thought our aid to Britain would be too late and too little. Immediately they saw it would not be, they changed their policy and began to threaten war as loudly and persistently as possible over rumors and relatively small projects.

It is clear that the purpose of their threats is to force us to debate the quesion of aiding Briain not as a measure short of war but as if it were, which it is not by any means, a policy of total war. Their hope is that they can precipitate a debate here which will make the policy of aiding Britain so slow and so contentious that it will not work. Then, if it has been brought to failure, and Britain falls, the triple Axis will talk to us about the future of this hemisphere from its bases in Ireland, France, Portugal, Spain, West Africa, the Azores and Singapore.

The Gospel According to St. Matthew—Chapter 21 (Cont'd)

But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance.

And they caught him and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him.

When the lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen?

They say unto him, He will miserably destroy those wicked men, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their seasons.

Jesus saith unto them, Did ye never read in the scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner: this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvellous in our eyes?

Therefore say I unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruit thereof.

And whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken: but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder.

And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spake of them.

But when they sought to lay hands on him, they feared the multitude, because they took him for a prophet.

Working Days

From Canadian Business

A young man asked his boss for the day off and this is the reply he received:

So you want a day off eh! Don't you know that every day is a holiday? Look at it this way. There are 365 days in a year. You sleep 8 hours or 122 days leaving 243 days. You have 8 hours of spare time or 122 days, leaving 121 days. You don't work 52 Sundays leaving 69 days. The office is closed Saturday afternoons giving 52 half days or 26 days, leaving 43 days. You have one hour for lunch making 16 days, leaving 27 days. There are ten Canadian statutory holidays, leaving 17 days. You have two weeks' holidays with the usual long week-end at both ends, leaving one day. That day is New Year's Day and we are closed.

Do you still want a day off?

Highway Deaths

From The New York Sun

In the first 10 months of this year 27,360 deaths from motor vehicle accidents were reported in the United States, 1,610 more than occurred during the same months in 1939.

If these figures are discouraging, indicating a probable total for the year 2,000 in excess of the 1939 total, there are some encouraging facts. In the first eight states have had fewer fatal automobile accidents in the 10-month period of 1940 than they did in the previous year. Another is the fact that the increase in motor vehicle deaths just about matched the increase in automobile travel.

If eight states, even in the face of rising automobile travel, can attain better safety records, then the erring five-sixths ought to be inspired to do better. Safety itself is no accident. It just happen. It is brought about.

Lieutenant Or Just Mr.?

From the Quebec-Telegraph

We have received a letter from a retired soldier who apparently spends his leisure studying our social column and who objects to the use of the title "Lieutenant" in connection with junior army officers. He claims that to do so is to leave the impression that the officer referred to is either in the Navy or in the Royal Air Force. In the Army he points out, officers holding the rank of Lieutenant should be called "Mister" and adds that it is only privates and non-commissioned officers.

Of course, the rank of lieutenant exists in the Army and commissions are issued accordingly. On the other hand, the custom undeniably is as our correspondent has stated and we are only too glad to [illegible] for the fact that we find ourself—as an editor so frequently is—"between the devil and the deep sea."

Ours is a "citizen's army" here in Canada, very largely recruited from men who have not selected a military career and who therefore [illegible] of the niceties of military custom and tradition. At all events, [illegible] friends and relatives apparently have [illegible] the rank of Lieutenant and whenever we try to refer to him as "Mister" they take umbrage at the fancied slight.

Consequently, as this paper is not a military journal and is not desirous of offending its readers involuntarily, we [illegible] our old soldiers have drilled the public into the traditional way.

persuade the corpses to assume such pretty patterns.

"It may be," writes Vittorio, in another place, 'that I had expected too much. I had anticipated terrific explosions such as in the American films, whereas the huts of the Ethiopians, made as they are of clay and brushwood, do not offer the bomber any satisfaction."

Yet the engaging Vittorio found the flimsy Ethiopian huts better than nothing.

"We would fly over the huts," he recalls with zest, "and try to hit them with small bombs. It was lots of fun. . . . War certainly educates. I recommend it to everybody. . . . War for us has been a sport, the most beautiful and complete of all sports."

Better even than mayhem, young Vittorio? Oh, loads better.

Quite clearly, an old bomb enthusiast like Vittorio is going to have twice as much fun in this affair as he had in the Ethiopian skirmish.

There is no dearth of women and children among the Greeks, for instance, to be burned to death. And what good is a barbecue without meat? Naturally, Vittorio and his young Italian friends will have more fun this time.

The bloody-minded young skunk! Don't feel too sorry for the Italians.

Successive bombing attacks on Dublin leave no doubt that the German assault on Southern Ireland is deliberate and not the result of error or miscalculation.

Eire seems to be in for it and there are those who firmly believe, with good reason, that Hitler will attempt an invasion on the Irish coast as a prelude to a more vicious, hand-to-hand attack on Britain.

Whatever has precipitated this sudden onslaught against Eire or however much Eamonn de Valera has invited trouble with the Germans by throwing up the bogey of British aggression, there is no time for recriminations now.

Whether she likes it or not, Eire is in the war. And even as an unwilling ally of Great Britain, she must receive the same British protection as is accorded to actual British soil.

It is not a matter of treaties now. It is a matter of humanity. All nationalities within the Empire will insist that Eire be accorded all sympathy and assistance.

Incidentally, the matter of the British use of Eirean ports as naval bases has been taken out of Mr. de Valera's hands.

The answer has been given by Adolf Hitler.

The New Year season has always been a silly season. If it is inherent in a man to play the fool, he will play the fool most lustily at the time when one twelve months merges into another.

Some current instances of human folly are these:

Between Christmas and New Years a learned scientific society of international repute spent three whole days in New York discussing the phenomenon of drunkenness. Highly-trained savants delved deeply into the amazing fact that ten ounces of Scotch whisky will make one man tighter than a fiddler's drum and leave another most depressingly cold.

During the same period the Herr Doktor Josef Paul Goebbels made a speech. He said that the enemies of Naziism have always "misjudged Adolf Hitler." He said that Germany is "fighting for the happiness of mankind."

And God struck Ananias dead!

Speaking of Ananias recalls another instance of seasonal tomfoolery. Down in Burlington, Wisconsin, the Burlington Liars' Club, with a national membership, held an annual contest to discover the champion liar of America.

I forget just what tale won the prize. It was dull and unamusing.

Another exciting seasonal event was the selection of the ten best-dressed men in America. The Customs Tailors Guild sat down solemnly and took poll after poll to decide which ten men in all America tied their cravats most neatly and had fewest bags in their pants. The winner was Peter Arno, a gent who makes extraordinary goofy drawings for the magazines.

Still another absurdity of 1941 was the climax of the battle between radio stations and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

The latter holds the copyright on virtually all the popular songs of the past 50 years and charges a royalty for use of them. The American radio networks decided these royalties were too high and decided to ban the songs protected by the society. As a result, American radio programs of 1941 have had to go back to the classics and folk songs.

But lest all this should lead you to believe that our civilization is not worth saving, there are a few incidents of another kind worth mentioning.

There is the case of the dead bartender in London who had the ability to arouse such lovely friendship that when the house in which his body lay caught fire from an incendiary bomb, eight of his friends carried the coffin down four flights of narrow stairs through the flames.

There is the case of Tom Hodge, 74 years old, who had escaped from an Alabama prison farm 21 years ago and who on New Year's Day walked into Kilby prison and surrendered himself to spend the rest of his days in confinement because his conscience bothered him.

Human nature is not all depraved and frivolous because a few of us do silly things.

There is still another instance of human grandeur of which I should like to remind you here.

A few days ago, someone sent me a beautifully illuminated copy of an editorial written in the New York Times at the time the British army was evacuated from Dunkerque.

In case you do not recall it, I should wish to refresh your memory. It is entitled, simply, "Dunkerque" and it reads like this:

"So long as the English tongue survives, the word Dunkerque will be spoken with reverence. For in that harbor, in such a hell as never blazed on earth before, at the end of a lost battle, the rags and blemishes that have hidden the soul of Democracy fell away. There, beaten but unconquered, in shining splendor, she faced the enemy.

"They sent away the wounded first. Men died so that others could escape. It was not so simple a thing as courage, which the Nazis had in plenty. It was not so simple a thing as discipline, which can be hammered into men by a drill sergeant. It was not the result of careful planning, for there could have been little. It was the common man of the free countries rising in all his glory out of mill, office, factory, mine, farm and ship, applying to war the lessons learned when he went down the shaft to bring out trapped comrades, when he hurled the lifeboat through the surf, when he endured poverty and hard work for his children's sake.

"This shining thing in the souls of free men Hitler cannot command, or attain, or conquer. He has crushed it, where he could, from German hearts.

"It is the great tradition of Democracy. It is the future. It is victory."

Fisherman Finds Boat After Eight Weeks "Straying"

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

FAUST, Jan. 6.—It wasn't a horse or a cow that strayed away the first of last November, but a boat worth about $400, and not until last Friday did its owner, of the Kenny Fur Farm locate it.

The boat was anchored in the Narrows not far from the shore when one night it froze so heavily that it was impossible to get to it. While waiting till it should freeze enough, a strong wind broke the ice loose and the boat was carried away on the floe.

Extensive inquiries failed to locate it, and it was feared that the boat floundered and would not be seen again. But a fisherman ran across it recently east of Martin river, many miles from the place it was anchored, and some eight weeks after it had disappeared.

SERVICE IS HELD FOR LLOYDMINSTER CHURCH OLD-TIMER

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

LLOYDMINSTER, Jan. 6—St. Johns Church, Lloydminster, was filled Friday afternoon for the funeral service of the late Emma Olorenshaw, housekeeper at the Vermilion School of Agriculture, who died during the course of her duties Tuesday. Attending the service was Principal Gandier and Mrs. Gandier of the school together with other members of the teaching staff and officials.

In the course of his address, in which he spoke words of commendation on the life of the deceased, Canon Rev. J. F. Haynes referred to an illustrated address that had been presented to her by the church in Birmingham, England, where she had served for many years as a member of the choir before coming to this continent.

Miss Olorenshaw was born in Birmingham 72 years ago, migrated to Boston, U.S.A., in 1910 where she lived with her sister until December, 1918, when the sisters took up residence in Lloydminster, and renewed their church activities, becoming associated with St. Johns Church, as valued members of the choir. Miss Olorenshaw accepted her position at the Vermilion college in 1928, and has held her position up till the time of her death.

She spent the Christmas holidays in Lloydminster with relatives and friends, the first Christmas she has spent away from the college since she joined its staff 12 years ago. She leaves here sister, Mrs. Howell Sen of Lloydminster, and a brother, W. Olorenshaw, at Victoria, B.C.

Farmers To Send No Resolutions On Hog Grading

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

LACOMBE, Jan. 6—Seventy-five farmers from the district surrounding Lacombe met in the church hall here Saturday night, and after a long discussion of all phases of the present system of grading hogs, decided that no resolutions on the matter would be sent to the Dominion government for the present. Although the new compulsory rail grading system was criticized by many of those present it was felt that it would be unfair to condemn it until federal agricultural authorities had visited Lacombe and explained all details of the situation. For this purpose a meeting will be called at a later date.

While most of those attending the meeting were of the opinion that rail grading was a fair method of setting the prices paid to the shippers, they also complained that their hogs were "Being graded down on arrival at the packing plants, and that returns were much lower than under the old system."

George Brown, president of the Lacombe and District Board of Trade, opened the meeting, after which H. S. Trame presided over the discussion. F. H. Reed, superintendent of the Dominion Experimental station, and H. E. Wilson, assistant superintendent of livestock, were among the speakers.

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

TWO HILLS, Jan. 6—Pobeda, a rural school district south of here, gave a presentation of their Christmas concert in the Recreation Hall in Two Hills on Friday, in aid of the local Red Cross. The pupils of the school, ranging from wee tots to 'teen-age pupils entertained a large crowd with musical items, recitations, dramatizations and dances. The orchestra directed by John Berezan, teacher, played classical compositions of some of the favorite tunes of the day. Arrayed in brilliant costumes and smart appendages, the orchestra made quite a hit with the attendants.

Johnny Beleski, a young student of the school, was outstanding in his act of the "Whisky Bottles." He had a number of the bottles ranging in size and amount of water in each. These he suspended by threads from a horizontal bar and on these he played two tunes. The bottles each had a different note and the playing was similar to that of a xylophone.

Tickets sold at the door were raffled with the following results: tablecloth to Harry Skoropad of Plain Lake; novelty combination table to George Delawski of Two Hills; dresser set to Charles MacKee of Two Hills; stationery set to Steve Gresiuk of Two Hills; playing cards to Mike F. Rudyk of Musidora and two boxes of chocolates going to Anne Kostek and Jeanette Kulka both of Two Hills.

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

CAMROSE, Jan. 6—A nominating convention will be held here January 10 by the Independent group to name a candidate for the seat in the provincial legislature left vacant by the death of Hon. D. B. Mullen, late minister of agriculture.

C.C.F. Party already has nominated C. A. Ronning of Camrose.

A Social Credit convention made three nominations but the candidate is to be picked from these by the advisory committee in Edmonton. The nominees are Mrs. J. Tucker and Morley Westlake, Camrose, and C. I. Sayers, Meeting Creek.

LACOMBE

Chocolates, chewing gum and cigarettes were given to a large group of returning soldiers as they left Lacombe over the week-end to rejoin their military units in Winnipeg. The treats were donated by a Lacombe lady who has made it a practice to see that all soldiers are remembered with gifts as they leave the district.

Ministers in various Lacombe churches are exchanging their pulpits this week in observance of the universal Week of Prayer. On Monday Rev. J. E. Williamson spoke in St. Andrew's United Church; Rev. Floyd Coxson will deliver an address in the Baptist Church on Tuesday night and Rev. A. L. Carr will bring the meetings to a close when he speaks in the Free Methodist Church on Wednesday evening.

McCoy Health Service

Avitaminosis is a big word with a simple meaning—it means "a disease caused by lack of vitamins" and any deficiency in the system of even one of the vitamins, produces symptoms of disorder and the patient is then said to be suffering from avitaminosis. For instance a lack of vitamin A may produce night blindness, loss of weight and certain skin conditions, and the defective formation of the enamel on the teeth, Vitamin A occurs in abundance in the fish liver oil. While this vitamin does not exist in plant life, most of the yellow and green vegetables contain carotin, which is converted into vitamin A in the system. When you think of the yellow vegetables especially, such as carrots, squash, pineapple, oranges, remember that these are rich in Vitamin A.

The next vitamin is B and is known as the antineuritic vitamin, and a severe deficiency of it causes the disease known as beri beri. A sufficient intake of this vitamin is necessary to keep the nerves healthy and it is often used for the relief of neuritis of certain types, and it is found abundantly in most of the vegetables. Vitamin G is another important one, and while as yet little is known of the nature of this substance, recent research has shown that a lack of it may be the cause of pellagra which is characterized by eruption of the skin, canker sores, digestive disorder and a host of distressing nervous symptoms. Some dramatic cures have been accomplished in cases of pellagra by the use of a diet consisting of yeast, wheat germ, liver, eggs and milk as the principal items.

Next on the list is Vitamin C and this one is the protector against scurvy. It also raises the resistance of the body against infection. Vitamin C is found in various vegetables and fruits, the citrus fruits such as oranges, lemons and limes having a high content. Vitamin D is another important compound which has the ability to prevent and cure rickets. Lack of it in the diet may cause bow-legs and other malformation of the bones and it is necessary for the formation of sound healthy teeth. Vitamin D is known as the sunshine vitamin as it is formed by the ultra-violet rays in the sunshine, on the skin.

The latest vitamin to be publicized is Vitamin K and this has to do with the clotting of the blood. I have named the more important vitamins today and those readers who would like to have more detailed information are invited to send for Dr. Frank McCoy's "List of Vitamins." Just address your letter to the McCoy Health Service and enclose 6 cents in loose stamps and a self-addressed envelope.

Questions and Answers

Question: Mrs. O. T. writes: "Please explain in your column what the disease called anthrax is. I heard it mentioned at a farmers' meeting."

Answer: Anthrax is commonly called "wool-sorter's disease" the germ present was discovered 90 years ago. Anthrax is quite virulent. Infection is possible through a break in the skin. Those handling hides and wool are often infected. Prompt treatment by a physician is essential.

Looking them Over

Riding Record Bit Synthetic

PERSONALLY I am an admirer of many qualities possessed by our good neighbors on the U.S. side of the border, but I wish they wouldn't take their records and championships so seriously. There is a type of American citizen who considers a record or championship the one and only objective in sport, whereas I contend that such distinctions are like a suit of tails and silk top hat—nice to have but not essential for enjoyment.

Take the struggle between Dew and Taylor for the distinction of riding the most winners during 1940. The boys were neck and neck down the stretch and Dew won out with 286 wins against Taylor's 285.

You'd naturally think that such a number of wins would mean that these two jocks are the cream of the crop, but it seems that their records are a bit synthetic.

Writing in the New York World Telegram, Frank Ortell says that Taylor at least went so far as to buy the privileges of riding horses that were in a good spot to win. An agent of Taylor's would go to the owner of a likely horse and offer to bet $100 for him if he would let Taylor ride the horse. In the event that arrangements had already been made for another jockey to ride the mount, Taylor's agent would offer the $10 fee to the rider engaged to sit the race out and give Taylor the saddle.

Taylor figured he could well afford to make such offers in view of what winning the year's riding championship would mean to him.

These two horse-pounding kids, Dew and Taylor, may be excellent riders, but a championship established by paying for the privilege of climbing on a horse that looks like a winner leaves me cold. It's a natural result however of the American's blind worship of champions and record smashers.

What is more, we here in Canada haven't got much right to talk. We are just about as daffy over records and champions as the excited American. What I'm driving at (and the drive seems to have developed a terrific slice) is that how you do a thing is more important than the fact you did it. Taylor's 285 wins don't weigh out to very much if he bought many of them. About all they mean is that he is a shrewd kid who is saving his fins and investing them in a reputation for himself.

Eagan Is a Bumptious Fellow

BAZ O'MEARA, sports editor of the Montreal Star, gives a rink-side description of the battle between Ken Reardon and Egan that broke out in the Canadien-Amerk game a week ago Saturday. It will interest Reardon's Edmonton friends.

Says Baz:

"Frenzied fans who saw Egan take a full swing and nick Reardon for a four-stitch cut over the head on Saturday night, considered it a very deliberate act.

"They figured that Egan, who is a bumptious fellow, had decided to teach young Reardon a lesson. Ken flattened the big boy against the boards with a jolting check that made his molars rattle. Then Egan, who fancies himself as the top ranking fighter of the league, hardest shot as well as hardest hitter, was maddened by the impact.

"So he let his stick cut through the air as soon as he righted himself. He gave Ken a four-stitch cut. He may have had some thoughts of scaring him as well. But Ken doesn't scare very easily. He sailed in with the same determination shown by his roomie, young John Quilty, who reddened the bulging cheeks of the bumptious Egan earlier in the game with three socks that landed as though John had his foot behind them.

"Egan wound up with a match penalty. That seemed right as well as proper. He has to pay $100. That will hurt a lot. It will teach Egan to keep his stick below his waist after this.

"We don't think he intended to hit Reardon over the head. But he was looking at his back when he did it. Giving him all the benefit of the doubt, he is a bit careless with his wand. Such fellows are liable to do a lot of damage if unchecked.

"It was funny to hear Red Dutton demanding of Ion why he had put Egan off. Mickey just gave him a stony stare, said nothing even when Conacher passed some uncomplimentary remarks right in his ear. Mickey was very touchy afterwards when Blake just made a casual cussing remark, but he let all the high-pitched American chatter pass unnoticed. Taking Egan out of action was a pretty definite answer to anything they might say about him."

Lacombe Beats Camrose 5-0 Forcing Tie For First Place

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

LACOMBE, Jan. 6—Lacombe Athletics climbed back into a tie for the Central Alberta Hockey League leadership here on Saturday night, when they defeated the top place Camrose Maroons 5-0. Both teams now have 16 points.

Saturday night's game was featured by stout defence work on the Lacombe team, and by exceptional goal-tending by Frank McCool who was hard pressed all the way by the Camrose forwards.

Bill Torry was the top scorer for the locals with two goals and an assist, with sub-zero weather prevailing outside the rink, the attendance was the smallest of the season.

Ragged play featured the first period and it was not until midway in the second frame that play opened up and Bert Schwab notched the first counter for Lacombe.

Max Katz was tripped when right through a few minutes later and given a penalty shot on the local goal. However, Max forgot all about the rules and parlayed the puck round a bit before shooting and his shot was thrown out by the referee.

Coach Ken Tory and his men put on plenty of pressure late in the period only to have the Lacombe defence skate them off time after time.

Bill Torry started a scoring bee for Athletics in the final frame and Art Greene was right back with another counter to make it 3-0 for the locals.

Torry netted his second goal at the 13:40 mark and Roberts ended the scoring when his shot found the Camrose net after he had taken a pass from Pete Chilliback.

The 5-0 win was well earned but was a heart-breaker for the Maroons as Soulie, Tory, Hantiuk, Katz and the whole team had tried desperately to avert a shutout.

LINEUPS:

LACOMBE—McCool, Chilliback, Clift, Torry, Greene, McDougall, Ballendyne, Roberts, Miles, Brooks, Schawb, Todd, Yelland.

CAMROSE — Constable, Worton, Spencer, Tory, Soulie, Swelline, Hantiuk, Duffield, Baker, Katz.

Referee—M. Anderson; judge of play, H. Leggett both of Lacombe.

SUMMARY:

First Period: No scoring. Penalty, Katz.

Second Period: 1—Lacombe, Schwab, 11:03. Penalties — Duffield, Spencer, Greene, Chilliback.

Third Period: 2—Lacombe, Torry (Greene) 7:00. 3—Lacombe, Greene (McDougall, Torry) 8:13. 4—Lacombe, Torry 13:40. 5—Lacombe, Roberts (Chilliback), 16:49. No penalties.

THOMPSON LEADS AT LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Jimmy Thomson moved back into the lead of the $10,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament Sunday at the end of 54 holes, and, gaining an advantage over another contender's hard luck, goes into today's final round with a one-stroke lead over Chicago's Johnny Bulla.

Thompson, first-round leader, toured the drizzle-soaked Riviera country club course in par 71 Sunday for 211 while Bulla took 75 for 212.

Bulla played the wrong ball—owned by his partner, Harold "Jug" McSpaden—and the eventful result was enough to keep him out of the foremost of the tournament.

Two strokes back of Thomson, winner of the tournament in 1938, were Denny Shute, former P.G.A. champion, and Willie Goggin, formerly of San Francisco, now of Miami, Fla., who had a 68 for the day's low score.

Defending National Open champion Lawson Little took a 71 and was tied at 215 with Craig Wood, Mamaroneck, N.Y., who took 72 to get around.

C.A.H.A. To Drop Hockey Bulletins

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Delegates at the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's semi-annual meeting Saturday decided to abandon the practice of issuing periodic hockey bulletins in western Canada.

The recommendation to discontinue the hockey bulletins was made by Frank Sargent of Port Arthur, C.A.H.A. first vice-president.

Dorothy Goos Goes Flying

C.A.H.A. Plans Overhauling Of Transfer Regulations

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 6—(CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will submit amendments to clauses dealing with transfers or revise transfer regulations at the annual meeting in Calgary in April, delegates decided at the semi-annual convention here.

In addition to discussing steps to remedy transfer violation, both international and branch-to-branch in Canada, delegates prepared the way for distribution of moneys received from the National Hockey League for C.A.H.A. players, set April 11 as the opening day for the Canadian Junior Memorial Cup finals, and approved reinstatement of five professional players.

The C.A.H.A. approved reinstatement of Walter Martin of Brantford, Ken Doraty of Saskatchewan, Arthur Merrill of Manitoba, Hillis Paddon of Hamilton and Roy Burmister of Collingwood, Ont., subject to approval of the N.H.L.

Delegates prepared to leave for their homes Sunday after completing major business Saturday which included:

Approval of a hockey week in Canada when 10 per cent of gate receipts of every hockey game in Canada will be donated to aid the war services.

Approval of amendments to the constitution of the newly-organized International Ice Hockey Association subject to further revision at the annual meeting.

GRANTS APPROVED

Approval of a $500 grant to the I.I.H.A.

Approval of a $1,500 grant towards an honorarium for members of the C.A.H.A. committee, bringing to $3,000 the fund established to reimburse Dr. W. G. Hardy of Edmonton, C.A.H.A. past president, who is chairman of the committee, and his colleagues.

Dr. Hardy announced that at least $4,750 will be received this season under the agreement whereby the N.H.L. pays for amateur players signed by professional clubs. According to the agreement, the amateur governing body is paid $500 for each player taken by the N.H.L. and $250 for each player signed by a minor professional club.

The distribution of N.H.L. payments to the various C.A.H.A. branches and clubs was left to the C.A.H.A. committee. All players involved will be placed into two classes, those whose cases are "clear cut" and those whose cases are "doubtful."

ON SLIDING SCALE

The distribution will be conducted on a sliding scale, with Canadian junior and senior clubs of the United States Amateur Hockey Association given the same consideration.

Amateurs who signed or were on the reserve or negotiation lists of a professional club after Sept. 12, 1940, when the new N.H.L.-C.A.H.A. agreement was completed, are the only amateurs to be considered in the "payment" category.

Delegates, in agreeing that the Memorial Cup finals should start April 11, asked eastern branches to work out their play-off schedule to meet the April 11 deadline. It was announced that only four western branches would compete in the western junior playdowns, with British Columbia absent.

AID JUNIOR "B" SERIES

A. W. Macdonald, president of the British Columbia branch urged the C.A.H.A. to give its support to a junior "B" series between British Columbia and Alberta which was approved. The C.A.H.A. agreed to finance the B.C.-Alberta series to the extent of $300.

Major change in the constitution of the I.I.H.A. stipulates that the president of the I.I.H.A. must "always be an executive officer or a past president of the C.A.H.A."

In substituting the hockey week for the previous proposed Red Cross hockey week, delegates decided that the 10 per cent of the gate receipts for war services will be made up of five per cent from the teams and five per cent from each rink.

After the close of the two-day convention delegates were guests of the Thunder Bay Amateur Hockey Association at a banquet and later saw Port Arthur Bearcats and Fort William Hurricanes perform in a Thunder Bay senior contest.

WANER HOPING FOR 3,000 HITS

SARASOTA, Fla., Jan. 6—(AP)—Paul Waner, no longer the "big poison" of Pittsburgh's brother combination, wants to get back in major league baseball long enough to raise his hit total above the 3,000-mark, but he will join the minors for more money.

He is convinced he can play two more years in the major leagues as a regular, but "I haven't much more time to play and I've got to take the job that will pay me the most," he explained.

Waner, released by the Pirates early last month, said he needs only 149 hits to reach a total of 3,000 for his time in the majors, "and I figure I could do it in one more season. Then I would be up there by Ty Cobb, Hans Wagner, Tris Speaker and one or two others."

Maveety Flies To Join Eagles

VANCOUVER, Jan. 6—(CP)—Mark Maveety, young Edmonton hockey player, recently released by Guy Patrick from Vancouver Lions Pacific coast hockey club, left here by plane Saturday night for Montreal. He will continue to New Haven where he will join the New Haven Eagles, Montreal Canadiens' farm team.

Patrick gave no reason for releasing Maveety, and also kept silent on terms of a settlement by which Owen "Lulu" Lennon returned as Lion's rightwinger New Year's Day. Lennon had been suspended Christmas Day after he refused to pay a fine of a week's salary imposed because Patrick considered he had not taken proper care of a leg injury suffered shortly before.

Patrick would not say whether the fine had been paid.

Flyers End Losing Streak

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 6—(CP)—St. Louis Flyers defeated Kansas City Americans 8-5 Sunday night in the American Hockey Association. It was their first win in four games.

Harnott, Brenneman and Kendall each scored twice, and Purpur and W. Smith one each for the Flyers. Papike tallied twice for the Americans, with singles by Hudson, Jackson and McManus.

Fighter Fined For Poor Showing

ST JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 6—(AP)—The Missouri Athletic Commission Saturday fined Eddie Mader, New York heavyweight, $50 and suspended him for three months for his "unsatisfactory performance" against Tony Novak at Kansas City.

Novak, young Kansas City fighter, stopped Mader in the second round of a fight Friday night, part of an elimination tournament to pick an opponent for Joe Louis.

SPOKANE AGAIN LEADS LEAGUE

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Spokane squeezed back into the Pacific Coast Hockey League lead Sunday night, taking a 3 to 1 decision from Portland in a contest marked by frequent fisticuffs.

There was no scoring in the second period, but plenty of action just the same. Lude Palm and Glen Vickers of Spokane and Fergy Grieve and Eddie Ouelette of Portland were each given five minute penalties for fighting.

Red Conn and George Steeves also spent two minutes apiece on the bench during the period.

Ching Dheere gave the Portlanders their lone goal early in the opening period before Vickers whipped in a Spokane marker and assisted in another by Johnny Emery a few minutes later. Aubrey Webster fired the final Bomber goal on a pass from Bill Gauf and Ralph Blyth in the final session.

LINEUPS

Portland — Hill; Conn, Ripley; Ouelette; Grieve, Martin. Subs: Sutherland, Holmes, Dheere, McFadden.

Officials: Pat Murphy, referee; Al Galipeau, umpire.

SUMMARY

First period: 1—Portland, Dheere (Holmes), 5:26; 2—Spokane, Vickers (Scharfe, Palm), 7:59; 3—Spokane, Emery (Vickers), 16:47. Penalties: Dheere, Martin (10 mins.).

Second period: No scoring. Penalties: Conn, Palm (5 mins.); Grieve (5 mins.), Vickers (5 mins.), Ouelette (5 mins.), Steeves.

Third period: 4—Spokane, Webster (Gauf, Blyth), 11:58. Penalties: Sutherland, Scharfe.

Judges Hold Up Payoff On Fight

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A heavyweight fight between Tony Novak, Kansas City, and Eddie Mader, New York, was called "no contest" by the referee and judges Saturday and purses of the two fighters were ordered held up pending an investigation.

The bout was intended possibly to find an opponent for Champion Joe Louis in a proposed meeting next March.

Mader, 192, went to the canvas under a flurry of rights and lefts from Novak, 217, after one minute and 14 seconds of boxing in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout.

Coast League Wants N.H.L. Team

SEATTLE, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Pacific Coast Hockey League directors announced today they had voted to invite a National Hockey League team to play an exhibition tour through the Pacific northwest. President Fred "Cyclone" Taylor, Vancouver, B.C., was given power to arrange a series in Vancouver, Seattle, Spokane and Portland.

The Chicago Blackhawks played five games in Vancouver last spring.

Et Tu Adolf?

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The German radio reported Heinz Lazek, recognized as Germany's "heavyweight champion of professional boxers," knocked out the Italian titleholder, Precios Marlo, in eight rounds in Munich Sunday and thus became the outstanding contender for Max Schmeling's European championship.

Quaker Barred

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 6—(CP)—Delegates at the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association semi-annual meeting Saturday ruled that Bob Clements who signed with Regina Rangers of the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League before joining the Saskatoon Quakers club, is ineligible for interprovincial senior competition this season.

FEATURE TAKEN BY BULL REIGH

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6—(AP)—Bull Reigh won the $10,000 San Felipe stakes at Santa Anita Park Saturday.

Bull Reigh, owned by Mrs. Anthony Pelleteri, finished by four lengths ahead of the Milky Way's After Dawn.

The time for the seven-furlong event was 1:24 over an "off" track. The race was limited to three-year-olds. There were 10 starters.

The favorite, Bull Reigh paid $6.20, $3.60 ad $2.80. After Dawn paid $4.80 and $3.20 and Porter's Cap $3.60.

Jockey Johnny Longden of Taber, Alta., who rode four winners for a new record at the meeting Thursday and then injured his back Friday, did not appear Saturday. It was reported he would be unable to ride for some time.

Pond Discharged

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Yale discharged its head football coach, Raymond W. (Ducky) Pond, today and replaced him with the former line coach, Emerson W. (Spike) Nelson.

The announcement that for the first time in its history Yale had gone outside its graduate ranks for a gridiron boss came on the heels of the Elis' poorest season, which saw Yale drop seven of its eight contests.

Edmonton Club Packs In Biggest Crowd Of Season

KIMBERLEY, B.C., Jan. 6.—(CP)—Kimberley's biggest hockey crowd of the current season was on hand Saturday night as Edmonton Flyers defeated the Kimberley Dynamiters 3-1 in an Alberta Senior-West Kootenay interleague hockey game here.

Joe Brown scored for the Flyers in the first period and Ab Newsome and Les Bird counted one each in the second, with Benny Redisky scoring the Dynamiters' lone goal in the final session.

Brown and Bird sailed through the Dynamiters' wide-open defence at the start of the game, the former chalking up the first point for the Flyers after four minutes of play.

Riley Mullen came off the bench midway through the second period just in time to provide the assist for Ab Newsom's counter.

By this time the Dynamiters were having a little less difficulty in solving the Flyers' five-man zone defence, and went through with several spectacular power plays. They were stopped each time, however, by Davie Pow who was outstanding in the Flyers' net.

Al Laface, the Kimberley netminder, also played exceptionally well but was beaten again before the end of the second period when Les Bird scored unassisted.

Tempers flared briefly during the second period when a Kimberley goal was disallowed because of an offside.

During the final 20 minutes the Dynamiters used a five-man offensive in an effort to overcome Flyers' lead, but succeeded in cutting it down by only one point when Redisky scored on an assist from Curly Hunt.

Dynamiters were the speedier of the two teams but did not have the finish exhibited by the Edmonton squad. The Flyers were exceptionally expert in defence with the Watt brothers doing a thorough job at checking Kimberley rushes.

Eddie O'Keefe, high scorer in the Alberta Senior Amateur League, appeared ineffective in the game here and failed to score either a goal or an assist.

Brown, with his one goal and one assist, shared honors with Pow as the chief factors in the Edmonton victory.

Maple Leafs Beat Calgary 4-2 In Overtime For League Lead

LETHBRIDGE, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Lethbridge Maple Leafs jumped one game in front of the Alberta Senior Hockey Hockey League pack by scoring a 4-2 overtime win over Calgary Stampeders before a crowd of close to 3,000 persons here Saturday night.

The victory snapped Leafs' first place tie with the cowboys, who remain idle now until January 15.

Ken Stewart, shifted from his usual defence berth to centre between Marshall Darling and Dick Gray, was the hero of the game, scoring three Leaf goals. Mel Lunde netted the other Lethbridge marker. Joe Shannon caged both Calgary goals.

Leafs should have won the contest in regulation time, as they dominated play for the first two periods and on at least two occasions muffed perfect scoring opportunities after Rice-Jones had been pulled completely out of his net. Loose play in the third, coupled with a costly penalty to Jim Joyce allowed Stampeders to tie the count in the third but Leafs took command again in the overtime.

GOLF SHOT SCORES

Lunde opened the scoring in the seventh minute to play when he golfed a bouncing shot at Rice-Jones after Alex Kaleta had slapped the puck to him from a face-off inside the Calgary blue line.

Leafs took advantage of a tripping penalty to Tony Desmarais to increase their lead in the second with Stewart lifting the rubber into an open net on a two-way relay from Dick Gray and Kaleta.

Jim Joyce was serving a penalty in the third frame when Calgary opened the scoring from a play coming after a face-off inside the Lethbridge blue line. Dave Duchak got the draw and relayed to Cam Burke who fed the rubber to Shannon in the clear. Joe counted with an accurate shot to the corner.

ICE POOR

Stewart was in twice as Leafs pushed Stampeders back and several close plays wre spoiled by poor eral close plays were spoiled by poor Lethbridge finally notched the winning marker when Darling flashed in on the left side and passed from the backboards to Stewart who lifted it over Rice-Jones as the goalie left his cage in a desperate dive.

Coach Marty Burke pulled Rice-Jones and put out a sixth forward in an effort to equalize but with thirty seconds remaining Harvey Barnes got the draw on a face-off inside the Leaf blue line and dropped a pass to Stewart who scored with an end-to-end shot with just thirty seconds to full time.

Detroit Wings Win Twice To Gain Tie For N.H.L. Lead

DETROIT, Jan. 6.—(CP)—Pushing in two goals in the first period and another in the third, Detroit Red Wings defeated Montreal Canadiens 3-0 here Sunday night and moved into a first-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League standings.

It was the fifth consecutive win for the Red Wings, and gave them 29 points in the standings—the same number as the idle Leafs. Detroit's fourth win had come last night when they downed the Leafs 3-1.

Right winger Mud Bruneteau scored for Detroit early in the first period. Gus Giesebrecht and Syd Howe were credited with assists.

Smooth passing set up the second Red Wing tally. Alex Motter, Carl Liscombe and Joe Fischer teamed up to take the puck down the ice, and Motter drove it in at 8:07 from almost directly in front of the net.

After the initial flurry Canadiens, who had been playing listlessly, began to look like a new club. During the second period they held the play even, but twice when Detroit were short-handed, Canadiens failed to score. Credit for that went to goalie Johnny Mowers who was outstanding in scoring his second shutout of the year.

Young Fisher, recalled only last week from Detroit's farm club at Indianapolis, fired the puck past Gardiner for the final goal of the night on a breakaway at 13:46 in the final frame. Motter and Carl Liscombe also figured on the play.

Detroit Breaks Four-Year Jinx

TORONTO, Jan. 6. — (CP) — Detroit's puck hounds pestered the injury-riddled Toronto Leafs into committing all the mistakes and Red Wings walked off with a 3-1 National Hockey League victory here Saturday night. The victory, scored before 12,444 customers, sliced another two points from the Leaf's lead at the top of the pack and left them only two points ahead of Detroit.

It was the first time since Nov. 5, 1936, that Detroit had beaten Leafs on Toronto ice.

It was a colorless spectacle for a good half of the game. All the excitement was packed into the first 10 minutes of the third period when Syl Apps scored for the Leafs but it backfired some eight minutes later when Syd Howe scored Detroit's final goal.

Rookie Don Grosso got the first Detroit goal midway through the second and four minutes later Carl Liscombe upped the Red Wings' lead to two.

Syd Abel set up the play for Grosso's goal, carrying the puck the length of the ice and leaving it at the crease for his teammate to drop in.

Apps' goal followed a scramble around the Detroit goalmouth and a good share of the credit belongs to Nick Metz who fought off three Red Wings in bringing the puck up to his teammate. Howe's tally followed a breakaway by Gus Giesebrecht and Mud Bruneteau.

Canadiens Draw With Rangers

MONTREAL, Jan. 6.—(CP)—The rejuvenated Montreal Canadiens, matching speed with New York Rangers, twice battled from behind for a 3-3 overtime draw in a National Hockey League fixture Saturday night.

A sell-out crowd of about 12,000 watched the flying Canadiens overcome a two-goal deficit in the second period, only to fall behind again. Rookie Jack Adams' third period tally kept Montreal in a fourth-place tie with Rangers.

Recovered from a lengthy bout with injuries, Rangers went ahead on first-period tallies by Dutch Hiller and Neil Colville. Goals by Joe Benoit and Polly Drouin knotted the count for Canadiens. Alex Shibicky again gave the New Yorkers the lead.

The lightning-fast pace fell off to a comparative walk after Elmer Lach and Tony Demers combined to set up Adams for the final tying counter just 25 seconds after the third session started. Referee King Clancy disallowed a New York protest that Adams shot from inside the goalie's crease.

Five penalties handed out included four majors after a free-for-all near the end of regular time. The lustiest battles were between Hiller and Alex Singbush of Canadiens and the Rangers' Phil Watson and Canadiens' Demers, all of whom were banished.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—(AP)—Peppery Phil Watson scored three goals Sunday night as New York Rangers outplayed New York Americans for a 6-2 National hockey league victory that gave Lester Patrick's speedy team a lead of three games to one in the city series for the William J. MacBeth Memorial trophy.

A crowd of 15,205, comfortably filling Madison Square Garden, saw a speedy and well contested first period followed by two periods in which the Rangers scored time after time on breakaway plays in which the Americans' defence, slower afoot, was trapped out of position and goalie Earl Robertson was given no chance.

Three times the Rangers scored while short-handed, twice by Watson and once by Lynn Patrick.

Neil and Mac Colville each got a goal to complete Rangers scoring, while Murray Armstrong in the first period, and Johnny Sorrell, half a minute before the end, scored for Americans.

Hawks Draw With Boston 2-2

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Chicago Black Hawks' defencemen gave Sam Lo Presti, their rookie goalie, stout support while gaining a National Hockey League overtime tie with Boston Bruins, 2-2, Sunday night before 12,000 at the Boston Garden.

Lo Presti, called up from the St. Paul American Association club to replace the injured Paul Goodman, made his major league debut an impressive affair. He turned back all but two of the 29 shots the Bruins aimed at him during the 70 minutes' play.

His first miss was a fluke, for a Chicago defenceman deflected the first Boston goal, credited to Rookie Terry Reardon, into the Chicago cage. While Flash Hollett was serving a penalty Joe Cooper countered for the Black Hawks.

The Hawks pulled into a 2-1 lead in the 14th minute of third period play, when Phil Hergesheimer converted Doug Bentley's assist. But Dit Clapper rifled in a 40-footer and put the Bruins back on even terms with less than three minutes of regular time remaining.

The deadlocked rivals were in angry moods during the scoreless overtime sessions, which saw seven penalties imposed, including two each against Clapper and Johnny Mariucci. The pair came to blows after the Bruin defence star rushed to the aid of Eddie Wiseman as he tussled with George Allen along the left sideboards.

Playing Without Transfer May Bring Team Suspension

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 6—(CP)—Delegates to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's annual meeting next April in Calgary will be asked to approve a constitutional amendment providing penalties to any team playing a player who has not legally been transferred from one C.A.H.A. branch to another.

In an effort to restrict movement of players from branch to branch without authorization of hockey's governing body, the C.A.H.A. approved a resolution at its semi-annual convention here Saturday that states that if a club uses a player who has not received his branch-to-branch transfer, the club will be automatically suspended.

The resolution, introduced by a committee headed by Dr. W. G. Hardy of Edmonton, followed a complaint from George Dudley of Midland, Ont., president of the C.A.H.A. that some players had signed cards to perform for several clubs.

The resolution says the club applying for a player requiring a branch-to-branch transfer must make its application 14 days before the date of the first game in which the player is to participate. Upon receipt of this application, the branch concerned must apply within three days to the other branch involved.

The branch to which application is made must reply with its approval or rejection, and in the latter case include its reasons, within seven days of receipt of application.

If the branch to which application is made refuses the transfer, the applicant branch may appeal to the registration committee.

All players moving from branch to branch, irrespective of exceptions from residence date or import rule, must secure a branch-to-branch transfer.

The responsibility for enforcing the transfer rule will rest upon the branch and the club involved.

Covering international transfers, the resolution says:

"The British Ice Hockey Association or the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States shall apply directly to the registrar-treasurer of the C.A.H.A. within 48 hours of the receipt of a transfer application.

"In case the application is refused by the club or the branch, it is to be noted that officers of the C.A.H.A. have the authority to grant the transfer. It being provided that not more than any one such transfer from any one C.A.H.A. club can be granted."

Edmonton Skiers Plan Busy Week

Edmonton Ski Club members enjoyed a full day's skiing Sunday, starting off with helpful instruction by maestro Ted Bishop at 2:00 p.m. Skiing and informal instruction were continued after supper until "lights out" at 10 o'clock.

A big get-together jamboree is planned for Wednesday evening under floodlights. Instructor Ted Bishop will be on hand to start instruction classes at 8:00 p.m. Everyone is urged to turn out for these lessons which have already helped scores of beginners and more advanced pupils to attain better technique. Ted's Wednesday night instruction will stress stem turns and exercises for beginners.

After skiing there will be plenty of hot coffee and sandwiches for all with dancing and movies. Gordon Torgness, who is, incidentally, developing into a polished skier, has promised to teach the girls and boys the new "Hambro" dance step which will be a feature of the evening.

A hearty invitation to all Eskimo Ski Club members is extended for Friday evening. Members of the Edmonton Ski Club look forward to showing all Eskimos a real good time on the floodlighted hills.

The Thursday mid-day luncheon is now a "must" date for all skiers. These luncheon dates provide an excellent opportunity to get information about such important subjects as waxing and equipment.

Players Must Refund Expenses

PORT ARTHUR, Jan. 6.—(CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has ordered James Drummond of Toronto, a member of Toronto Marlboros, Senior Ontario Hockey Association team, to repay money that Cornwall Flyers expended on him in connection with his failure to play for Flyers this season.

Dr. Hardy said the N.H.L. is claiming exemption from payment for certain players but had agreed to guarantee the C.A.H.A. a minimum total payment of $3,000 for the year apart from the $1,750 already paid.

Herb Foster and Johnny Polich, each with two, and Murdo McKay, Lloyd Ailsby, Stan Smith and Bill Juzda were Ramblers' scorers.

Double Victory Deadlocks E.A.C. And Leafs In Standing

Edmonton Athletic Club defeated Maple Leafs on Sunday afternoon before some 3,600 fans, the largest crowd to watch a junior tussle at the Arena this winter. The victory placed the winners in a tie with the Leafs in the loop standing, each having 12 points.

While the E.A.C. won there was very little if anything to choose between the teams. In fact the game appeared to be pretty much a stop-go affair on both sides. Each team would dig in for a while and then settle back for a rest letting the goal-keeper attend to whatever business happened to be around.

Oddly enough, just the same as in Saturday's game, another pair of high points-makers came to grief. For the first time this winter Alex Pringle and Stan Devicq of the Maple Leafs failed to collect either a goal or an assist. When that pair or Bill Maher or Vic Kuzyk don't register in a game—well that is really something for the book.

In the first period on Sunday afternoon there was plenty of action, but no results. Both goalies had their troubles, with the Leafs showing more of a tendency to bore in on the nets than the E.A.C.

DUTCHAK SCORES

The next period started out rather quietly, but Walter Dutchak crossed up the opposition when one of them obligingly handed him the puck at 1:46 and all he had to do was go around a half-consenting defenceman to bang a sizzler past Blefgen for the first counter.

This Maple Leaf goal immediately put plenty of fire into the game and the E.A.C. started to press. Douglas drew a penalty for hooking and when Pringle was chased for the same offence, the Leafs were really up against it.

The Athletic Club squad drew even with the Leafs at 5:08 when Dave LaRose followed in on a play by Maher who made the pass out from behind the net. Dave, whose work in yesterday's game was again outstanding, beat McAuley quite easily.

The E.A.C. had the edge on territorial play in this period until the last few minutes.

MAHER GETS WINNER

The winning goal came at 1:35 in the last period when Jack McPherson and Bill Maher executed a nice piece of strategy. The pay-off pass was slid ahead by Jack through the defence to Maher who raced right in to completely baffle McAuley on the play.

Jack Carney got in two dangerous rushes in the period, hitting the goal-post on one and missing the net the second time and he nearly counted on a three-way play with McPherson and Simpson.

The Leafs did their best work in this period and gave the E.A.C. defence and Blefgen plenty to do. Dutchak had hard luck on one chance, but on most plays the Athletic Club defence blocked well.

The Maple Leafs had the pressure on during the last three minutes, but Douglas spoiled what chance his team-mates had to score when he pulled another hook-check—this time on McPherson as the latter was practically through—and went to the cooler with only 30 seconds left to play.

E.A.C. Defeats Canadians 4-2

Only a handful of spectators watched Edmonton Athletic Club defeat Canadians 4-2 at the Arena on Saturday night's decidedly sub-zero weather.

The E.A.C. boys finished the first period two up, added another pair in the next 20 minutes while Canadians were making one and the latter counted the only goal of the final canter.

The really big news that came out of the game was that neither Billy Maher nor Vic Kuzyk figured in the game summary. Vic had either scored or gotten in on the assist side in every game he had played previously and Bill has missed getting a goal in only one game all winter and is always good at lending the helping hand to others. Both missed in Saturday's game.

Simpson opened the scoring at 7:34 in the first period when he took Doug Lewis' pass to put the E.A.C. one up. Jack McPherson added another on a solo effort just past the three-quarter mark.

Jack Isaac boosted the E.A.C. lead to three at 6:07 in the second period, Jack Carney slipping the rubber to his teammate after carrying it well in.

There was no further scoring until after 18 minutes had elapsed and it was Dave McAra who put the Canadians up on the scoring board, Norm. Olsen and Johnson being in on the kill.

Dave LaRose, whose playing has been improving in every game, scored the E.A.C. final marker on Jack McPherson's pass just a few seconds before the period ended.

The only goal of the last 20 minutes went to the Canadians, with Olsen firing the shot after taking a nice pass from Doug. Anderson.

GERMANY FEARS BRITISH DRIVE TURKS BELIEVE

ISTANBUL, Jan. 6—(AP)—A belief that Germany fears a British attack through the Balkans were expressed Sunday in the Turkish press which says it considers Italy as good as out of the war.

The newspaper Vakit, commenting on the visit to Vienna of the Bulgarian premier, Bogdan Philoff, said it was because of the "Italian defeat" that Germany fears "attack from the Balkans. Therefore the Balkans need not fear attack from Germany."

"It is probable that the Bulgarians will talk with the Germans about how to prevent a British attack, rather than how to carry out a German attack in the Balkans," Vakit said.

Yeni Sabah said that "defeat is Hitler's only destiny—only the form and date of the defeat are unknown."

Canadian Squadron Returns To Action After Rest Period

LONDON, Jan. 6—(CP)—"Rarin' to go," as one young flier put it, the Royal Canadian Air Force Hurricane Squadron returned to duty at an active fighter station today after a period of rest at a satellite post.

The cloud-riding Canucks enjoyed peace and quietness for several weeks at a northern station far off the path usually flown by axis raiders. The "vacation" followed a long and strenuous tour of duty near London in September and October when Jerry was pounding the metropolis night and day.

RAILWAYS ARE AIDING CANADA IN WAR DUTIES

A. A. Gardiner States Companies Have Stood Up To Demands

WINNIPEG, Jan. 6.—"When Canada, as a free sovereign state, proudly ranged herself on the side of freedom and declared war, it was of vital importance that the railways should be capable of bearing the strain that war would inevitably place upon them. The railways were efficient and ready and have functioned 100 per cent in Canada's war effort," declared A. A. Gardiner, assistant general passenger traffic manager, Canadian National Railways, at the annual banquet of the Northwest Commercial Travellers in Winnipeg Saturday.

Mr. Gardiner came from Montreal to reply to the toast to "the transportation companies," a time honored toast at the annual gathering of the Knights of the Road.

Mr. Gardiner made a careful review of the general railway situation in Canada prior to the war, and as far back as 30 years ago. During the last period known as the "depression days" times were difficult, he said, "however, despite all hardships and difficult times, the railways were maintained at an effective standard. In spite of all obstacles and general financial difficulties the start of the present war found Canada with a much better railway machine than she had when the war of 1914-18 broke upon us.

DEMANDS HEAVY

Track equipment and power, and management and the body of workers, "staff and line," all were fit to go; it was known that the demands would be heavy.

"It perhaps could not be anticipated that they would be as heavy as they have been. Much less could it be anticipated that we could, even now, calmly and with confidence look to a future of even greater demands, and face it unafraid.

"Over fifteen months of war effort, however, has failed to develop one weak link. There may have been anxious moments and many problems. There will be more anxiety and other problems. Management and men have both been tested. They have been called upon for their best, for their uttermost endeavors.

"Man and munitions. Supplies and material, movements within the country, movements through the country, movements enroute overseas, and movements from overseas, each has produced its own peculiar problems. Each problem, even the most complicated and the most exacting, has been solved."

FIRST MEMBERS OF "INVASION" TROOPS ARRIVE

LONDON, Jan. 6—(CP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation Sunday described 15 German infantrymen who "arrived in England since the middle of October" as the "first members of the great invasion army to reach England alive."

The text of the broadcast follows:

"It can now be revealed that 15 German infantrymen who have all arrived in England since the middle of October are among the German prisoners now in English prisons or war camps.

"They all landed at ports on the English southeast coast and were in fact the first members of the great German invasion army to reach England alive.

"It is an interesting fact that these 15 men came from eight different units."

The broadcast gave no indication where the men were captured or the circumstances.

(In New York, William McGaffin of the Associated Press London bureau said heroic squadrons of British infantry have been staging motorcycle sallies from channel boats deep into occupied France and that one of the motives of the raids was capture of German prisoners.)

Anti-German Books Taken From Paris Stores, Libraries

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—Widespread raids on Paris libraries and book stores by the German Gestapo, highly-placed educational quarters disclosed today, have swept their shelves clean of anti-Nazi writings and much philosophical and historical literature. In general, the order is that nothing of an "anti-German character" may be sold.

The latest advices from authentic neutral sources said the Gestapo had seized the libraries of all Masonic organizations in France.

War Prisoners Offer To Help Solve Problem

LONDON, Jan. 6—(CP)—Some Italians captured in Egypt and Libya are helping solve the problem created for the empire armies by the large number of prisoners taken, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported Sunday night.

These men, the BBC said, "are volunteering to put disabled Italian lorries into running order and drive other prisoners to the bases themselves—under the eyes of a British guard."

AUSSIES ARE JUBILANT AT ARMY'S FEAT

Stirring Action Of Troops In Fall Of Bardia Thrills the Nation

By J. D. HOLDSWORTH

SYDNEY, Jan. 6—(CP)—Jubilant Australia avidly scanned newspapers and hugged radios throughout the week-end to hear accounts of the stirring action of its men who stormed and broke through the Italian defences of the Libyan port of Bardia.

First thrill came shortly before noon Saturday when the early editions of the evening papers published the news of the Australian Imperial force's successful attack. First official news was contained in a dramatic direct cable from army minister P. C. Spender who reached Egypt just a week ago.

Headlines through the day and into Sunday that greeted Australians at street corners were: Australians Smash Bardia Defences, Enter Town, "Italians Routed Hand-To-Hand."

Mr. Spender's cable said Australia is proud of the Bardia success gained with comparatively few losses in an operation that was a great tribute to the officers and men of the Australian Imperial force.

"What already has been accomplished is, in my opinion, the forerunner of events to come," he added. "Bardia will fall and bit by bit Italy's forces will be overwhelmed. That Australian troops played such a magnificent part will bring joy to their relatives and pride to the nation."

(Fall of Bardia was announced officially by British military headquarters at Cairo Sunday night.)

The Sunday Telegraph welcomed the brilliantly-executed operation at Bardia and said it was a compliment to the commonwealth that among all the tough, hard-bitten British units under Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell's command, the Australians should be chosen to lead the assault.

It illustrates the claim of the A.I.F.'s recruiting director, Brig.-Gen. Lloyd, the newspaper said, that the Australians are the "storm troops" of the British army with the requisite qualities of dash, courage, resource, men "full of spirit and eager for battle."

Britons Urged To Be Vigilant By Chancellor

ELTHAM, Kent, England, Jan. 6—(CP)—Watchwords for 1941 must be "vigilance, action, unceasing endeavor," Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, said in a speech here Sunday.

He warned that Britain will have to face sterner and graver ordeals but said the country ended 1940 much better than she began it.

ULSTER SCORES EIRE ATTITUDE OF NEUTRALITY

BELFAST, Jan. 6.—(CP)—The Ulster Unionist Council, which stands for continued union with the British Crown, says Eire's neutrality is "deliberately prejudicing Britain's prospects of success in a struggle which means as much for one country as the other."

The declaration came in a report to be submitted Thursday to a meeting of the Unionist Party.

The report says that "our political opponents have seized every opportunity to urge expulsion of Ulster from the United Kingdom and its inclusion in Eire in the belief that Northern Ireland would be declared neutral and unable to help Great Britain."

Former Magistrate Of Edson Passes At Pacific Coast

VICTORIA, Jan. 6—(CP)—Richard Bradley, 72, magistrate at Edson, Alta., for many years prior to his retirement four years ago, died here last night. He was born in St. Catharines, Ont., and served in the Boer war as a trooper in the Strathcona Horse.

WRITER SEES ITALIANS IN FINAL ROUND

May Soon Be Counted Out Of War Correspondent Says

By EDWARD E. BOMAR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6—(AP)—The fall of Bardia piles up more evidence that Italy may soon be counted out of the war almost to the same degree as prostrate France.

Certainly the remainder of the Fascist force of some 250,000 troops so carefully prepared for an attempt to invade Egypt will be incapable of offensive action for a long time to come, and it is threatened with complete debacle.

The future course of events in the Mediterranean depends obviously on such developments as a Nazi attempt at invasion of Britain or a campaign in the Balkans, but for the time being Britain, with the aid of surprising Greece, has clinched control of the middle east war theatre.

The British warships are free now to aid a drive toward the main Italian base of Tobruk.

Logically, the next British move would be to press their present advantage with a drive to smash Marshal Graziani completely. Britain is in the happy position for the moment, however, of being able to slow down without disaster while diverting forces elsewhere.

Some troops and planes could presumably be spared for transfer to Greece, to aid the campaign in Albania, to meet a Nazi thrust toward Salonika, or to bolster the Turks in event of a geeral Balkan war. More important, warships may be spared without too much risk to help the homeland.

The desert offensive demonstrated dramatically the driving power of the new army of Australia and other empire troops. In numbers it has been expanded now into a formidable force of possibly 250,000, neutral military men believe.

CABINET MEET IS CONVENED BY ABERHART

Government Discusses Ottawa Trip and Date Of Session

Returning to his office Monday after spending the Christmas holiday at Vancouver, Premier William Aberhart called a cabinet meeting during the morning to discuss a number of urgent problems.

Personnel of the Alberta delegation to go to Ottawa for the Dominion-provincial conference on the Rowell-Sirois report, opening January 14, will be among the first matters to be attended to. This delegation will have to leave toward the end of this week. It is expected that at least four ministers will go, as following the opening session of the parley, it will break up into four sections. It is thought one minister will be available for each section.

DATE OF SESSION

Another important matter to be decided at an early date by the government is the actual date of the session. It had been expected it would open February 6, but as the Dominion-provincial conference has been called January 14 and as this will undoubtedly affect the course of the session here, the opening probably will be delayed until February 20 or 27.

ACTION TO FORM POULTRY BOARD OPENS THURSDAY

Action will commence to form a provincial poultry marketing board next Thursday when delegates elected at 100 meetings will gather at 16 different points. These selections were made when a plebiscite was held in November.

From these meetings, 16 names will be drawn for consideration as appointees to the marketing board. From among these 16 the government will name a majority of producer members of the board.

It is provided that the board will consist of not less than three and not more than five members.

Expectations is that the board will be named in the near future by Hon. E. C. Manning, minister of trade and industry.

Through The Mill

Extreme cruelty was charged Monday against a man charged with non-support by the wife of accused, who testified that her husband beat his three small children repeatedly over a period of several years. When she intervened she would be choked, the woman told the court.

The children, aged three to one years in age, had been thrown violently on the floor, their heads banged against the wall and injuries so severe that blood flowed freely were inflicted on several occasions, the woman said. "On one occasion he put his fist through the wall of the house, slammed a chair on the floor and then started tossing dishes out of the cupboard onto the floor," the wife testified.

On another occasion, the woman said, accused had thrown cold water over one of the small children and as a result of this the child has suffered from a serious complaint ever since. The case is continuing.

A woman who pleaded guilty to being intoxicated as a second offender was sentenced to three months in jail.

Two ordinary celebrants were fined the usual $20 and costs with the option of 30 days in jail.

ENGLAND STILL DELIVERS GOODS CLOTHIER SAYS

"England is still delivering the goods," it was stated by A. M. Talbot, Toronto, assistant general manager of Tip Top Tailors, Limited, on a visit to Edmonton Monday to inspect the company store here. He is registered at the Macdonald.

"We are still getting our shipments of British fabrics and we expect to all this year," Mr. Talbot said. "With our orders coming through, we are able to obtain our usual high quality goods."

He stated that business was holding up well and that his company was maintaining its prices close to present levels. "We are keeping our prices down as much as possible," he said, "as we do not want to raise the cost of living."

Man Held After Purse-Snatching

City police Monday were investigating a purse-snatching early Saturday in which Miss Jean Paul, 10040 115 street, was the victim as she walked west from 101 street. Police later arrested a 19-year-old man, who will face a charge of robbery from the person in city police court.

W. Walter, 11527 97 street, stopped a prowler car manned by Constables Arial and Johnson and informed them of the purse snatching.

Farm mechanics, including farm motors, tractors, fuels and oils, will be the main topics of discussion at the agricultural short course to be held in this city in conjunction with the provincial seed fair, January 15 and 16.

Prof. E. A. Hardy of the University of Saskatchewan agricultural engineering department, will attend. He has had many years experience in farm power problems and will be able to offer valuable advice and suggestions to farmers and specially those who use tractors.

Prof. J. Macgregor Smith of the University of Alberta will deal with the regional use of farm machinery, while W. J. Elliott will discuss horticultural problems.

On January 16, Dr. F. A. Wyatt of the U. of A. field soils department, will deal with fertilizers and W. T. G. Weiner, secretary of the Canadian Seed Growers Association, will speak on problems of seed production.

During both days the provincial seed fair will be open. Many interesting exhibits will be displayed, including samples of grain winning awards at the recent Chicago International show. A larger entry of forage crop seeds is expected this year.

World championship wheat and oats which won premier awards at the Chicago International Show last month, will be on view at the seed fair, according to O. S. Longman, provincial field crops commissioner. Those prize-winners will not be entered in competitions, but will be on view for show purposes only.

First War Friendships Renewed By Forty-Ninth At 26th Reunion Dinner

Friendships forged in blood and steel under intensive fire from the Imperial German Army in the Great War of 1914-1918 were renewed and recalled at the 26th annual banquet of the Forty Ninth Battalion (Edmonton Regiment) Association, Saturday evening, at the Macdonald hotel.

The reunion was on the 26th anniversary, to the day, of the mobilization of the Famous Fighting Forty Ninth, for it was on January 4, 1916, that enlistment commenced. It has been the practice to hold the annual gathering on the Saturday nearest to date on which mobilization started, but only seldom has the event been held on the actual date.

More than 200 men who served in the great Edmonton battalion and special friends attended, a truly representative group of the 6,000 men who passed through the battalion during its service as part of the Canadian Corps. Officials expressed satisfaction at mustering such a large number 22 years after cessation of hostilities specially in view of the wide scattering of men after demobilization.

SISTER BATTALIONS

This banquet was notable, in that there were present men representing the regiments which today are carrying on the enviable traditions established by the 49th. At former banquets the toast "To Sister Battalions" was always directed toward those three illustrious regiments that, with the 49th, made up the "Silver Seventh" Brigade of the 3rd Canadian Division, namely, the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and the 42nd Royal Highlanders of Canada (Black Watch). Added to this group were the present 1st and 2nd Battalions of the Edmonton Regiment. The 1st Bn. is now on active service with the Canadian Corps in Britain and the 2nd forms part of the Canadian Reserve forces. There were present many serving with the 2nd Battalion.

Maj. Gen. W. A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., K.C., original officer commanding the 49th, later commander of the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade and now Inspector General of Canadian forces for Western Canada, was chairman.

From many sections of the province old Forty Niners came to once more sit round the festive board and swap yarns of the old days. Many a story was spun of the days in listening posts at Hooge in the Ypres Salient, in Sanctuary Wood, Mount Sorrel, Hill 60 and other points. Then, the boys recalled days on the Somme, when the 49th won glory in the attack on Regina trench. The investiture and capture of Vimy Ridge, the holding

FAITH IN GOD BRINGS PEACE RECTOR SAYS

Rev. Canon A. M. Trendell Charges Many Are "Spiritually Lazy"

"Who of us could dare to predict what history has in store for us in 1941?" questioned Rev. Canon A. M. Trendell, speaking at All Saints Pro-Cathedral Sunday morning. "Of these things we can be certain," he continued "It can never be the same as it was 10 years ago. We are also certain that peace and happiness can come in proportion as we live in harmony with God."

His text was the celebrated verse by Elizabeth Haskins, that begins: "I said to a man at the gate of the year—"

He said that text offered a double challenge—effort and faith. Speaking of effort he said: "The mass mind of this country slowly is beginning to realize that things in this world as we know them are at stake this moment more than in any previous age. We shall only succeed in peace when better people are in charge of things than there have been in the past."

SPIRITUALLY LAZY

Speaking of faith, Rev. Trendell said: "Spiritually we are a lazy people. We would rather sit in our pyjamas on a Sunday morning and listen to the sermon from the radio, than go out into the house of God and worship. They think they are getting their religion. They may be getting a form of entertainment but they are not getting spiritual worship."

"Who are you, you little man with your 30, 40 or 50 years on this earth, to doubt that there is a God when the chronicles of the ages since time immemorial have proclaimed this fact?"

PRAYER FOR YEAR

Rev. Trendell offered a prayer for the new year in which he stressed greater allegiance to the church and our faith, and a greater consecration of ourselves, our democracies, of all mankind, that they may search after God and find Him.

His Honor Lieut. Gov. J. C. Bowen read the scripture lesson at the Sunday morning service at First Presbyterian church. Rev. J. MacBeath Miller, minister of the church, took as his morning text, "Defense Still the Job for 1941."

"Beginning at Jerusalem," a message of hope for the beginning of a new year and the present crisis in the world's life, was the subject chosen by Rev. A. K. McMinn at MacDougall church Sunday morning.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

Musicians in the States are tearing their hair. Musicians in Canada are chewing their fingernails. All because there's a danger that popular music may lose out through a battle raging between individual composers, the three American radio networks and the syndicate in charge of popular music, its origin and sale. Now, as a lover of popular music, or swing, what are your impressions on the matter?

THE ANSWERS

DON ARNETT, clerk: The syndicate you speak of seems to be having trouble from both ends. The composers claim that they aren't getting a square deal and the networks won't play any more swing until they get their "square deal". All I can say is it's a bad time for jitterbugs—a mighty bad time.

WALLY BERRY, jitterbug: I'd hate to think of the noble art of jitterbugging coming to a sudden end. Just picture it, my friend. No swing, no dances, no jives, no rug-cuttin'. It's just too awful for words. Surely there must be something we can do.

LORRAINE BATEMAN, cashier: If swing goes out as a result of the controversy, it looks as if we may have to go back to jazz-dancing (1922 gramophone records). Which might not be too bad after all when you consider the fun people used to have. Why, it might even mean that fashions and styles would go back to the 1922 vintage.

JERRY BARIL, wireman: Even supposing we don't have any music from the U.S. networks, dash it all, we can still whistle, can't we? We can still sing, can't we, or should we?

BILL ROBINSON, businessman: There was a time when I told people that I was going to be a policeman when I grew up. Then I wanted to be a fireman. Now, when I want to be a composer of popular music, even that begins to look as if it will be squelched.

THE B.I.R.: Might I suggest that for a long time swing has been going from bad to worse? That there hasn't been a good piece of music out of Tin Pan Alley since "The music goes 'round an' 'round." This might be a good thing if it means an improvement in the type of music being produced today.

CHIEF WITHHOLDS ADDED COMMENT ON POLICE CHARGE

Chief Const. A. G. Shute stated Monday that he had no further comment to make concerning the charges of a city merchant to the effect that the city "is practically at the mercy of a gang of criminals."

"I have nothing further to say. The matter was discussed from all angles at the meeting," the chief constable stated.

U.S. Airplane Expert Compares Relative Strength Of Nations

By DEVON FRANCIS

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—(AP)—T. P. Wright, one of the United States' leading aircraft production engineers, estimates that by the spring of 1942 Britain, with 49,000 airplanes will achieve parity in the air with the Axis powers.

Moreover, he writes in the aeronautical publication, "Aviation", the United States will have parity with the Axis in air strength by the close of 1942 even though it continues to supply Britain with planes.

It was Wright, consultant to the National Defence Advisory Commission and vice-president of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, who last June warned that boosting American warplane production to 50,000 a year was a five-year job.

U.S. PRODUCTION

He fixes the rate of increase of United States airplane production starting with January, 1941, as greater "than at any period for either England or Germany."

He warns, at the same time, against "rash statements on '1,000-a-day' airplane production rates, as these are unattainable by great motor car producers or any one else."

These are the figures Wright believes will prove correct in the next 24 months:

Axis planes available, January, 1941—41,000; Britain 25,000; United States 6,000.

Relative strengths mid-1941—Axis 46,000; Britain 32,000; United States 10,000.

Relative strengths January, 1942—Axis 49,000; Britain 45,000; United States 16,000.

Relative strengths mid-1942—Axis 49,000; Britain 55,000; United States 28,000.

GERMAN LOSSES

He emphasizes that Germany's plane losses were three times those of Britain in September, 1940 and although they are being reduced, would remain twice those of Britain in July, 1942.

The United States is behind its scheduled output, he says, pointing out:

"Instead of completing the construction of approximately 40,000 planes (15,000 for Britain) by the spring of 1942, the date will be in the summer of that year, and instead of attaining an industrial capacity by that time of 40,000 planes a year, it will be about 30,000."

He estimates that the scheduled production of 50,000 planes a year will require a supervisory and shop personnel force of 800,000 persons.

To speed United States plane production Wright advocates reducing the 50 present models of military planes being made for the army, the navy and Britain to fewer than 40.

Former Head Of Jasper Park Is Dead In Ottawa

OTTAWA, Jan. 6—(CP)—Athol C. Wright, 61, former superintendent of Jasper National Park in Alberta, died Sunday at his home here. He had been in ill health since last June.

Before serving for five years as superintendent of Jasper Park, Mr. Wright, veteran of the Boer and first Great Wars, had been engaged for 15 years in the engineering branch of the old department of the interior.

Besides his widow, he is survived by four sons, including Lt. Errol H. Wright with the Canadian (active) army in England.

Lt. Errol H. Wright was a resident of this city prior to going overseas with an Edmonton artillery unit. His wife is residing here.

Man Slays Wife During Service In U.S. Church

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Before the eyes of worshippers, Mrs. Mary Jane McCarthy 32, was slain Sunday in St. Andrew's Catholic Cathedral by her estranged husband who held off the congregation with a shotgun so that he could make his escape.

Prosecutor Menso Bolt said Willis McCarthy, 34, a Detroit salesman, admitted killing his wife because she had spurned his attempts at a reconciliation. He was captured a short distance from the church.

CAVE - DWELLER GETS HOME IN SASKATCHEWAN

Arrangements to give an aged Scotsman who, during the month of November, was living in a cave on the river bank on the South Side until discovered by the Salvation Army, a good home in Saskatchewan are almost complete, Army officials said Saturday. At present the aged man seems very happy, according to Maj. E. T. Waterston, men's social secretary for the city. He said that three letters have been received from people offering the man a home.

Edmonton citizens saw to it that a happy Yuletide season was given the old man. They had read of his unfortunate circumstances in the press and many gifts of clothing and other articles poured in.

The Salvation Army is attempting to obtain a pension for the old-timer but it is feared this will not be possible. "I think he will be going to stay with some friends in Saskatchewan," Maj. Waterston said.

SEMI-ANNUAL 49TH MAGAZINE IS PUBLISHED

Semi-annual issue of The Forty-Niner, official organ of the 49th Battalion Association, published to coincide with its 26th annual banquet, held Saturday at the Macdonald, contains a wealth of material of interest not only to old members of the regiment, but to all those interested in the two perpetuating units now part of the Canadian Army.

There is a long resume of doings of the 1st Battalion now in England.

Maj. M. F. H. Browse, who recently returned here to act as an instructor after commanding "A" Company of the 1st Battalian overseas, contributes an article in which he extolls Britain's courage.

The feature "Where is My Wandering Boy" contains much information on former members of the regiment, scattered far and wide.

An article deals at some length with the doings of the 2nd Battalion, Edmonton Regiment, under Lt.-Col. R. Walter Hale, M.C. Details of its organization and activities are set forth.

Still another article pays tribute to the band of the 2nd Battalion, which, under Sgt.-Maj. Edward Kirkwood, is maintaining the high standards prevailing since 1915.

SUNDAY CONCERT FOR WAR FUNDS WELL ATTENDED

More than 400 persons attended a concert and entertainment arranged in the Varscona theatre on Sunday evening under sponsorship of the Sir Wilfred Laurier chapter, I.O.D.E. Proceeds of the affair are being devoted to the war work of the chapter.

Paricipating in the program was "Silver," a clever Alsation dog, owned by Miss Jeanette Nanson, formerly of this city and an animal trainer with a circus for a number of years. Highly trained, the two-year-old police dog did intricate routines and won the applause of the hundreds attending the concert.

Temperatures Are Moderating But Forecast Is Cold

From a low of 33 below Saturday morning, temperatures moderated over the week-end, the low for Monday night being 12 below at 5:30 a.m. At 8:30 a.m. the temperature was 8 below with a forecast of "continued cold" and a barometric pressure of 27.61 steady.

There is snow falling at McMurray, House River and Pelican in the near north, with low temperatures averaging 30 below and a maximum of 8 above at Calling River and 2 above at Pelican. Fair visibility is reported.

Reserve Units Resume Drill

Commencing a new period of intensive training, Edmonton units of the Canadian Army Reserve, formerly the Non-Permanent Active Militia, Monday were preparing to resume regular drill nights following the holiday season. All units are equipped with uniforms and rifles.

Several of the units held voluntary parades during the holidays but scheduled parades were cancelled in most cases. Due to begin Sunday morning, the majority of the parades were cancelled due to cold weather.

Parcels Are Stolen From Truck Depot

Three parcels, value of which has not yet been ascertained, were stolen in a week-end burglary of the Central Truck Depot, 10256 107 street.

The burglars jimmied open the front door and ransacked desks and drawers in the office but were unable to locate any cash. They then departed with three parcels containing goods for shipment. A check-up is being made to learn the exact nature of the contents of the parcels.

NO REPORT ON EXPLOITATION IN YOUTH PLAN

Asked regarding the recent charge by the Calgary Trades and Labor Council that Dominion-provincial youth training graduates were being exploited, Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry said that he would check but he knew of no complaints offhand.

From other sources it was learned that the graduates of this plan are "doing nicely." It is now three years since this plan was first put into effect and one official pointed out that it is at least two years since any suggestions was made that these boys were being exploited.

It was pointed out that with the increased demand for industrial workers, these boys are being absorbed at a quota of about 100 monthly, most of them going east. Others are being absorbed by air training and other industrial activities in the province.

When the training plan was first instituted, before there was any demand for the graduates, the government paid employers $2 a week to give tuition in carpentry or other trades. When the youth was ready he either remained on as an employee of his instructor, or was given governmental assistance in finding other work.

Officials expressed surprise at any suggestion that these boys were being exploited or badly treated in view of the heavy demand for trained workers.

SOLDIERS TO BE GIVEN COURSE AS MECHANICS

Mechanical training, including welding, will be given to 400 enlisted men of the Canadian armed forces in this province, commencing January 15, it was learned Saturday. The training will be carried out under the Dominion-provincial youth training plan.

Edmonton, Calgary and Medicine Hat will be the centres for training.

Men will be selected for this training by officers commanding their units. Total cost will be paid by the Dominion government.

Dr. G. Fred McNally, deputy minister of education, who is chairman of the Dominion-provincial youth training organization, stated that an early decision is expected on the location for the local training centre.

Small Damage In City Hotel Fire

Curtains and a part of the east wall were damaged by a fire on the premises of the Commercial hotel, South Edmonton, that started at 9.20 a.m. Sunday. The flames were confined to the women's beverage room and are thought to have started because of defective wiring. Apparatus from No. 6 and No. 2 halls responded.

THE CRUST IS NOT THE BEST PART OF [illegible]EAD

We have long heard that when [illegible] best part of the bread. Experiments at the University of California, however, do not bear out this contention. The university scientists found that more vitamins are baked out of the crust than are baked out of the inner part of the loaf and thus the crust has lost some of the essential food elements. Crust is healthful food, and probably should be eaten by more people, but it is not the best part of the bread—at least as far as vitamins are concerned.

The $224 is not an ideal clothes budget worked out by some flinty-eyed economist. It's what 209 professional women actually spent on their clothes during 1939.

WHAT SHE BUYS

	Average Price	Average No. Bought
[illegible]	$8.95	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Brassieres	1.18	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Nightgowns	1.95	1.4
Hose	.8[illegible]	17.4
Shoes	[illegible]	4[illegible]
Coats and wraps	26.96	1.0
Purses	2.15	2.0
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

The budget showed up some oddities. There's a great difference [illegible] clothes. In the group one woman spent only $43 during the year. Another shot the works with $7[illegible]

[illegible] had to keep up appearances. One woman somehow [illegible] dresses.

These women [illegible] through most of the scales, and their annual paychecks range from $1,183 to $5,600.

SOME LIVE ALONE

They live in boarding houses, in apartments with friends or by themselves. A small number live alone and there's evidence that they like it. As salaries go up, a greater number set up their own solo households.

Only a fifth of the group spend anything for rubbers or galoshes. And if you'll look at the figures you'll see that fancy underwear apparently has become a gift item. The career girls also spent smallish sums for slips and nighties and such.

Hose and shoes, however, take a big nick out of the weekly pay envelope. Hose seemed to last three weeks the pair. Shoes lasted about three months.

Contrary to man's usual belief hats don't seem to be the answer to a blue mood. Hats actually cost less than hose in these working women's budgets. They spent an average of $13 yearly for hats, and an average of $15 for hose. Maybe the answer lies in the beauty parlor. The ladies spent an average $60 for [illegible] $58

CHRISTMAS RUSH

By TOM HORNER

CHAPTER XII

DR. AND MRS. CONNELLY went directly to Jerry's room, when they reached the hospital, leaving Mary and the twins in the downstairs office. Kathleen thumbed through an out-dated magazine. Sheila and Mary waited near the window.

"I wonder if Dad and Mother will break the news to Jerry about Valerie," Sheila said. "He'll never believe we didn't have something to do with her leaving in a huff."

Mary nodded. The thought had been troubling her since Valerie stormed out of this same room five hours ago. Jerry loved Valerie. Mary loved Jerry. Valerie was in love only with herself. It was like a nursery rhyme riddle with no answer.

It was up to Jerry to find the answer. But how could they tell him what Valerie had said? Who would tell him?

"I don't know how that brother of mine could be so blind," Sheila went on. "He should have been wise to Valerie five minutes after he met her."

"He was unconscious while Val carried on about her car," Mary began.

"He's been unconscious for six months," Kathleen added, from behind the magazine. "He had to wake up sometime."

But the ending of Jerry's romance with Valerie would not solve Mary's problem. Jerry might be bitter, against his family, against her. He might even go through with his determination to quit medicine. If he did that there was little hope that she would ever have he opportunity of seeing him again.

And seeing him was necessary. If Jerry returned to school, they might begin dating again, as they had before Valerie intruded. Some day—Mary clung to the hope—Jerry might fall in love with her. Then, after Jerry had finished school—

Martha's voice interrupted: "Jerry is awake now. He wants to see you. He asked particularly for you, Mary."

Jerry was grinning as they filed into the room. Bandages encircled his head. A framework supported his broken arm. His face was pale and drawn, but he still could grin.

"Happy New Year! Here, be careful"—Kathleen and Sheila had rushed to the side of the bed to kiss him—"I'm fragile. I break easily."

Dr. Connelly's face and that of his wife mirrored their happiness. "Not so fragile, son," the doctor said. "The raps you took would have dented a stone wall and that hard head of yours didn't even crack."

"Queer place to spend New Year's," Jerry was saying. "I tried to go home for that annual family breakfast. Didn't quite make it."

"Let's forget last night," Martha suggested.

"No, don't want to," Jerry persisted. "I've got a lot of things to tell you. Valerie and I are through!" seemed genuine.

"You are?" The doctor's surprise

"Yes. Washed up. Finished." Jerry reached for his mother's hand. grasped it tightly. "I'll tell you about past—that's the rule, isn't it? And all of this happened before midnight." They waited for him to continue.

"It started when I said I had to be home this morning. Val wasn't coming at first, but finally gave in when I promised to take her home early. We kept arguing most of the time during the drive over here. Val said some things I didn't like about you.

"I told her she'd have to like my family if she was going to marry me, and she set me back on my heels by telling me that she had no intention of marrying me—ever. I got mad then, took her home. And on the way, we hit this other car."

"Val told us, too. While you were unconscious," Martha said softly.

"It's all over and best forgotten, son," Hugh advised. "You'll have to stay here for a couple of weeks, and you'll be shaky for a month or so, but you'll get over this—and you'll get over Val, too."

"I'm over that right now, Dad

" Jerry's glance went around the room. "I've been pretty much of a fool. I've hurt you, Mother, and you, too, Dad.   Say, think you could be using an associate in your office in a year or two? I'm going back to school."

They were all talking then, telling Jerry of Sheila's arrest, of the new car, of plans for the spring semester. But not for long. Dr. Connelly soon hurried them out of the room.

"What happened last year is past," Martha said as she kissed her son. "Hurry and get well. You're starting this new year from scratch."

"Mother, send Mary back here, just for a minute," Jerry whispered. "You all wait in the hall. I've something to say to her, alone."

The doctor, Martha and the twins stood beside the train. In a few minutes Sheila and Kathleen would be on the way back to school.

"Tell the house mother we're keeping Mary for a week," Martha said. "Jerry wants her to stay, and it makes the long days in the hospital more endurable for him."

"Wait till the girls find out he wouldn't even let her come to the train to see us off—" Kathleen laughed.

"Don't you dare—" Martha began, then laughed herself.

"And we'll make plans to bring Mary back with us for spring vacation," Sheila reminded them. "That will be such a surprise for Jerry!"

"Jerry will probably have more to say about that than you will," Hugh said. "Better say goodby now. Time for the train to pull out. Call us when you arrive, and we'll let you know how Jerry's getting along. Don't worry about him. Goodby—" * * *

"Well, they're gone again," she said. "And we're alone—until Easter. Seems like it was just yesterday we were planning what we would be doing for Christmas—"

"And doing some of the things we did not plan—"

"I never dreamed we could cram so much into two weeks' time."

Hugh smiled at her, as he unfolded his evening paper.

"Isn't that what they call it—Christmas rush?"

The End

AFTER-HOLIDAY MENU

Tender, juicy roast of beef with simply served accompaniments is a welcome change after elaborate holiday menus. Tomato juice with a slice of lemon and a dash of Worcester sauce is a refreshing cocktail. Then serve rare roast beef with pan-roasted potatoes, broccali with Hollandaise sauce, a mixed green salad, fresh fruit, coffee, cheese and crackers.

If you are selecting ties for gifts, and wish something really new and unusual, consider neckwear made of silk and glass fibers. They are made up in a large selection of fine colors and patterns and are said, because of their glass fiber content, to be exceptionally resistant to wrinkling and wear. And they are not too expensive.

Mosby's Tonic Was Splendid

Mr. Ashton Felt Tired and Sluggish—Stomach Full of Pains — Bowels Constipated—Now He Says: "Mosby's Tonic Has Relieved Me. I Feel Fine!"

"Oh! How my disordered stomach hurt me! The gassiness. The sharp pains. And all night long my sleep was disturbed, due to this indigestion and gas bloating. I couldn't rest. But since I got MOSBY'S TONIC my disordered stomach is relieved. Now I can sleep. The gas is gone. Here is a Splendid Medicine!"

MR. ASHTON

That is what thousands of people here in Edmonton and vicinity are saying about MOSBY'S TONIC, a "New Mixture of Roots and Herbs and Other Splendid Medicinal Agents," now being introduced to the public at the Army & Navy Dept. Store.

And remember—MOSBY'S TONIC not only helps Nature relieve gassy, upset stomach but also helps sluggish kidneys, cleanse bowels, invigorates the liver action, acts to relieve pain of rheumatic and neuritic trouble, caused by contaminated system. It accomplishes several things in the body at the Same Time.

For instance, just a few days ago, Mr. David Ashton, of 426 Brooklyn Court, Vancouver, B.C., made the following statement. This grateful man's testimonial, praising Mosby's Tonic, follows:

Was Low in Energy; Felt Weak and Sluggish

"About a year ago I began losing my health," said Mr. Ashton. "And as time went on I seemed to lose all my energy. I had no appetite and what little food I did eat wouldn't nourish my body properly, and as a result my nerves became upset and I simply felt worn out ALL THE TIME. My stomach was full of pains, due to gassiness and indigestion, and I was also a victim of bowel constipation.

"One day a friend of mine told me about Mosby's Tonic so I got this medicine and started taking it, and now I want to tell you that the first bottle has given me a great surprise. Why, do you know, within ONE WEEK I could see a big change in myself. At the same time, this medicine helped me to gain back my strength, and say, what an appetite-builder this Mosby's Tonic is! Now I eat like a hungry child, and I have gained in energy and never feel tired and worn out like I did before. It also relieved those indigestion pains and cleared out the gas bloating and regulated my bowels. I simply feel fine in general. It is SPLENDID!"

A Special Mosby's Tonic Representative, known as The MOSBY TONIC Man, is now at the ARMY & NAVY DEPT. STORE, Edmonton, daily meeting crowds of people and introducing and explaining this New Compound.

Clubs Know Protective Foods Safeguard Health

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

PROTECTIVE FOODS

Here is a list of protective foods emphasized in 4-H Club work, and suitable as a guide to a good daily diet for any growing boy or girl:

Milk .... 1½ pints to 1 quart
Butter .... 1 to 3 servings
Fruits and vegetables. 4 to 5 servings

A good balance is
1 serving potato.
1 serving citrus fruit, tomatoes, or raw cabbage.
1 serving green or yellow colored vegetable.
2 additional servings — fruits or vegetables.

Whole-grain bread or cereals .... 1 to 2 servings
Eggs, meat, fish, cheese, dried beans, or peas .... 2 servings
Total liquids (water, milk, soup, beverages) .... 2 quarts or more
Cod liver oil .... 1 teaspoon (especially in winter when you cannot afford plenty of whole milk, butter, eggs, and green-colored vegetables).

After the need for these protective foods is taken care of, Miss Birdseye suggests that the boys and girls eat additional bread and cereals as well as some sweats and fats. These foods give them the energy materials needed for work and play.

This diet guide was planned for club work on health. Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Campfire Clubs and other clubs besides the 4-H have found it helpful. But it is just as useful for young people who do not belong to such groups; for the problem of a good diet during the growing years is the problem of every boy and girl.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

If we could only put our finger on the underlying reasons why some children get into each other's hair. If the quarrelsome playmate happens to be a neighbor, we can send the child home. We cannot use such tactics when the visitor is a relative.

Here is a five-year-old who cannot play five minutes with a four-year-old cousin without pestering her, pushing her out of the way, refusing to let her go through a door, anything which always leads to crying. The fact that the child goes to pre-school and plays very amiably with strange children makes this behavior the more glaring. And while nothing has been said, as yet, between the sisters-in-law, the situation can't go on and the two remain friends. When the mother asks the child why she acts this way, she says, "I don't like her."

Just as we do not hit it off with every person we meet, so children cannot always find agreeable and pleasant companionship with all children, even though these children happen to be relatives.

The real rub is the animosity which developes between you two when your children bristle and scrap with each other.

It is quite possible that the older child is jealous of her cousin, for reasons which you did not divulge. No doubt you are extra nice to the child, knowing what is in store for her. You, in a word, fight the small cousin's battles against your own child and she may rightly be resentful of this.

Also, she is doing what most children do, trying to get the attention of the other child. She is using baby-tactics, but they work because she gets not only the child's but your attention as well.

HOW TREAT VISITORS

I'd keep reiterating how visitors should be treated. I'd get her Nursery school teacher to cooperate with you to enforce the lessons. Then when she begins to misbehave, banish her to the upstairs or the outdoors, telling her that the moment she wants to act as she should she may come back.

If she prefers her cousin's company to solitude, she'll play the game your way. But don't be dramatic about her behavior. You make it so exciting she will repeat it.

"Children's Quarrels" is the leaflet that deals with some of these play situations. To obtain a copy of it send your request with a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mrs. Eldred of the Your Baby and Mine department in care of this newspaper.

Dorothy Dix Says:

There is nothing upon which the young are so insistent as their right to live their own lives in their own way. Seek to control, or even offer advice or warning to any girl or boy, and the retort is hurled back at you: "It's my own life. I have a right to live it as I please." Which is a fine, resounding phrase. The only trouble with it is that it is not true. The other day I heard a mother pleading with her frail and delicate daughter to take better care of her health. "Oh, for heaven's sake, let me alone," cried the girl irritably. "You are always nagging at me about dancing too much and staying up too late; eating too much candy and not sleeping enough. I am tired to death of it all. It's my body and I've got the right to do what I please with it, and if I make myself sick I am the one who has to suffer. I have to endure the pain." "True," replied the mother, "and if you suffered alone you might, perhaps, have the right to wreck your health if you chose, but the difficulty is that you can't suffer alone. You involve so many other people in your catastrophe. When you are sick I pay for it in anguish and anxiety and in weariness during the long hours in which I watch by your bedside. Your father pays for it by having to work harder and do without the little things he wants in order to pay doctors' bills and hospital bills and nurses' bills and sanitarium bills.

"Some day you will marry and your husband will have to suffer for getting a nervous, neurotic woman for a wife instead of a strong and healthy one, and your children will have to pay in their poor, sickly, little bodies for being brought into the world by a mother who had abused her own body.

"Oh, no, my dear, you won't be the one who will suffer most if you don't take care of your health, and you haven't any right in the world to make yourself a semi-invalid if you can possibly avoid doing so."

As I listened to this mother I thought of another mother I once heard entreating her daughter not to marry a man who was a dissipated ne'er-do-well. "Perhaps I am throwing my life away, as you say," the girl said, "but it is my own life, my own happiness that I am risking, and I have the right to take the chance if I want to. I'm the one who has to lie on the bed I make."

And so she married her man, and the mother's heart broke as she saw her beautiful and gay young daughter grow old and haggard before her time, as she was dragged down into the gutter by her drunken husband.

And, at last, when the girl could stand no longer the abuse and neglect and unfaithfulness of the rotter she had married, she came crawling back to mother, broken in health and in spirit, and with three little children hanging to her shabby skirts.

The mother had a small income, scraped together for her old age by years and years of self-denial and pinching economies. It would have supported her alone in modest comfort.

But with three little children to rear and educate, it meant that poor old grandmother had to work her stiff old fingers to the bone cooking and washing and cleaning for these youngsters.

So the proud boast of youth that it has the right to live its own life falls through in the face of experience. The most that we can hope to do is to live our lives so that they will bring as much pleasure and as little pain to others as is possible. DOROTHY DIX.

Your Dog Relies On You For Expert Kindly Care

You Can Train Without Whipping

What an appealing, trustful look! You want to do your best for him, give him the simple but right care that keeps a dog happy, healthy and well-mannered.

No whipping your pet when he misbehaves, nor will you rub his nose in the dirt. Better housebreaking practise to take him to the spot and slap him lightly on the hindquarters with a folded paper.

He'll soon learn his manners if, when he's a tiny pup, you start taking him outside from five minutes to an hour after feeding.

Perhaps your dog is eating poorly, acting dull and listless. Has he caught cold? Does he sneeze and shiver? If so—bundle him into a warm place, give him a dose of syrup of buckthorn—from one teaspoonful to two tablespoonsful. Feed lightly, milk and beef broth, for the first day or two.

You can easily raise a happy, healthy dog, teach him clever tricks as well as obedience. Our 32-page booklet shows you how, helps you choose your pet, feed, housebreak and groom him. Describes symptoms and treatments of dog ailments such as distemper.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "How to Choose and Care for Your Dog" to The Edmonton Bulletin, 60 Front Street, West, Toronto, Ontario. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

The first Monday on any diet is tough and at this point you may be feeling a shade blue.

Now that the first fine glow has worn off, your stomach has started talking back to you and it's nip and tuck between your appetite and a weakening will power. You may even be having your doubts as to whether you can hold out.

The only thing that will keep you on your diet is to have some lost pounds to show for it. Starting with the new year, you should have lost a couple of pounds by now. If not, you may have tripped up on some minor mistake—like taking too much salt.

There are no calories in salt, but, peculiarly enough, it can keep you from losing. The absorption of salt and the retention of water in the tissues seem to be directly related and when you store up water as the fat is lost, your loss in weight cannot be registered on the scales. The rule is not to use any salt except that which is needed for the preparation of food.

This business of storing water is an exasperating phenomenon. The only thing we know about it for sure is: If you stay on your diet long enough, the water balance will adjust itself and the loss will appear on the scales—but it has been known to take as long as sixteen days for that to happen. It is only a very strong-minded reducer who can stick to a diet that long without results.

Recent experiments point to the use of a high protein diet in the prevention of water retention, so if you are having a hard time losing, see to it that you are getting plenty of protein. Have daily: Two servings of lean meat, fish or fowl—trimming off every particle of the fat; one egg, a glass of skim milk or buttermilk, and a serving of cheese.

Your trouble may be the habit of taking water with the meals—something that has no connection with water retention, but which is a big factor in appetite. Taken at the beginning of the meal, water stimulates the appetite, and taken with the meal or at the end of it, water tends to stretch the stomach and further increase the food capacity. Drink water between meals, but restrict the total liquid at mealtime to eight ounces. This little dietary trick is one that is practiced by most of the movie beauties.

One last thing. Are you eating your diet and feeling that you are entitled to dessert? The addition of 300 to 400 calories in dessert will make any diet null and void. After all, you have to choose between a slim waist and pie a la mode!

Minute Make-Ups

Getting a bit thick around the middle? Unless you are reconciled to buying dresses a size bigger the only remedies are a new corset and a serious course of exercises performed every day without fail for at least two months. If you're not the athletic type, try this for a starter. Get a box of fifty pins, the ordinary straight dressmaking variety, or, if you want to be very swish, glass-headed ones from the dime store. Scatter them all over the room. (No cheating now, keep your knees straight.) Bend down from the waist and pick up each one individually. Keep count and when they are all retrieved you will have done this waistline reducing routine 50 times.

A THRILLING NEW LOVE STORY BY ROB EDEN!

Lock up My heart

CHAPTER ONE

CAMILLA DENTON relaxed against the soft cushioned seat of the compartment and looked out the window at the flying scenery.

The luxurious comfort of the train gave her a feeling of well being that made the future seem something far distant and scarcely worth worrying about.

She was too filled with the wonder and the good luck of being on a train bound for California, with all expenses paid, to let an innate streak of practicality come to the surface.

It had even dimmed for the time the fear and the excitement of knowing there was a murderer aboard the train—only one stateroom away from where she was now.

It had literally dropped from the clouds, this trip. A few days ago if anyone had told her that within a week she would be half way across the continent from her native Chicago, starting a new life among strangers, she would have laughed uproariously.

NEBULOUS PLANS

True, she had thought of California, had even discussed it with friends as she had discussed Florida and New York and the Pacific Northwest. But any plans she had made were nebulous.

If Mrs. North hadn't come along to jar her from the even pattern of her life, she probably would have gone on talking about a trip some time in the future and never getting outside the city limits.

It had taken a shock to make her even think of leaving Chicago. It had been her home since she was born, and aside from several trips to the Wisconsin woods when her father was still living and before her mother became an invalid, her knowledge of the world

NEW LIFE

But Mrs. Denton's death two months previously had brought her face to face with the fact that hereafter she could not lead the well-ordered life that always had been hers.

There was no longer anyone to plan her days—no one who, despite a great love and understanding unusual in this modern world between mother and daughter, to make demands on her time and make her world the small one bounded by her schoolmates and the few friends of her mother's who had remained loyal through the years.

Of these friends, only one, Madge Morrison, could be called an intimate.

Madge and Mrs. Denton had gone to school together, had married men who had been their sweethearts in childhood, and had been drawn closer together when widowhood came to them less than a year apart.

If Madge hadn't had her father to care for, she undoubtedly would have moved in with the Dentons and made her home with them.

But even so, she was at her apartment three or four times a week up until the time that Edith Denton's heart, which had long confined her to a wheel chair, finally tired and stopped entirely.

WANTED TO MOVE

It was Madge who had urged Cam to give up the six room apartment and Flossie, the maid of all work the Dentons had had ever since the girl could remember, and move to a small hotel.

"Father takes more and more of my time when I'm free from the office," she said, "or I'd ask you to come with us. You've been around sick people too much in your life. It's time you stepped out a bit now and met boys and girls of your own age and began to live. It will do you good to live alone."

She had a month of school to finish before getting her diploma, but before that she had begun to speculate on what she would do later.

Money, fortunately, was not a pressing problem. Her father had carried heavy insurance and while they had lived comfortably, Mrs. Denton had kept well within their means.

DISCUSS FUTURE

"What do you want to do?" Madge asked Cam when they were discussing her future.

"I really don't know," she answered. "We did some settlement work as part of our sociology course, and I liked that very much. But I didn't know whether I could make a living at it. I'm not prepared for anything else, though of course I can always take a business course."

"Why not go away for awhile? Get a complete change of scenery and surroundings, and then when you come back, maybe you will have made up your mind about the future. Perhaps I can place you somewhere."

So they had discussed various places Cam might go, and then she had forgotten the whole thing in the rush of commencement week with its round of parties and various events.

She was resting in her hotel apartment the day after graduation when Madge phoned.

Her voice was excited, and she insisted that Cam come downtown immediately. She mysteriously refused to explain why.

Within an hour Cam was seated in the office of the Morrison Professional Service, which was Madge's name for what in reality was an employment bureau. She specialized in placing highly trained people in fine positions.

"I think I've got a short job for you, dear," she said, eagerly. "There's an old lady at the Drake who's leaving tonight for Los Angeles and she wants a companion. She's slightly crippled, but can mostly take care of herself.

"However, she's been accustomed to a companion and feels that she can't make the trip to the Coast alone."

"How did she get here, if she always has someone with her?" Cam asked.

"She has a regular companion, but the girl had to leave for home several days ago. It's a great chance for you, child. You want to get away from Chicago for awhile and here's a free trip offered you on a silver platter. What do you say?"

Cam suddenly made up her mind. She'd go if she could land the job. She took a cab to the Drake, and was ushered right up to Mrs. North's suite.

She had expected to go through a whole catechism, and was nearly floored when the only question the woman asked was whether she had worked before.

When Cam explained that she had just finished college, Mrs. North asked if she were prepared to leave that night.

"My train goes at 8:45," she said. "If you're back here by eight, I think we can make it safely. You needn't bother helping me pack. I'll have the floor maid in for that. Do you think you can make it?"

STERN EXPRESSION

Her dignified, aristocratic face, which Cam had thought was a bit stern and forbidding when she first came in, lighted up with a warm smile that completely charmed the girl.

She found herself almost stuttering as she answered that she was sure she could make it.

"There'll be a $25 fee and your return ticket and expenses. "I'm glad you're going to be with me. You're such a pretty little thing. So intelligent appearing, too, not one of these ultra modern sophisticated snips that I can't abide."

So here she was less than two days after leaving Chicago, comfortably seated in a compartment.

The door to the adjoining stateroom was closed but not locked so that she might go to Mrs. North when she heard her stirring about or if she called.

In the stateroom next to Mrs. North was Joe Raymond, murderer and fugitive from justice in the custody of a husky deputy sheriff from Los Angeles. He had been caught in Chicago and after a futile fight against extradition was being taken back to California where he was wanted as the suspected driver of a car in a bank holdup.

OPEN DOOR

Frank Kirkwood had told her about Raymond, and she had peeked in through the open door of the stateroom several times, shivering inwardly as she looked at the man seated next to the window, his right wrist handcuffed to the deputy's left.

She had met Frank Kirkwood in the observation car Monday morning, when, at Mrs. North's suggestion, she had taken a rest from her duties as companion.

She smiled as she thought of these "duties." They were so light as to be scarcely noticeable. She had helped her employer to bed Sunday and Monday nights, had eaten all her meals with her in the stateroom, had read to her some and talked quite a little, and that was all.

HAS LIMP

Mrs. North was not really an invalid, as Cam had known the term through care of her mother. The elderly lady walked with a decided limp but got along nicely with her heavy cane.

Her left knee, she told the girl, had been injured several years before in an automobile accident and never had healed properly.

"Of course, it never will be any better," she added. "I've consulted specialists all over the country and in Europe, too, and none of them can help me. But at my age it doesn't make any difference."

Cam had protested that she was not old, and she really meant it. She guessed her age at about 65. Her hair was entirely white and its whiteness undoubtedly emphasized the dignity of her strong features.

She was a woman of dominant character, but her dominance was tempered by occasional flashes of humor that removed it from the category of bullying.

The girl guessed that she was a woman who had always had a great deal of money and all her life had had a secure position in society.

Mrs. North had been quite interested when Cam passed on the information she had gleaned from Frank Kirkwood about their next door neighbor.

"Who is Mr. Kirkwood?" she had inquired.

"A newspaper man. He told me his paper sent him to Chicago when they got word that Joe Raymond had been captured. Apparently the case attracted quite a bit of attention in Los Angeles."

PUBLIC GRAFT

"Seems to me I did read something about it," Mrs. North remarked. "I seldom read news of that sort, though, but somehow this must have caught my attention. The newspapers seemed to think this man—Joe Raymond, did you say his name is?—was connected with some gang authorities were protecting. It's terrible, the way graft has entered into public affairs."

That morning she had told Mrs. North she had seen Joe Raymond for the first time.

"When I was going back to the observation car, the door of the stateroom was wide open, and I took at him. If Mr. Kirkwood hadn't told me about him, I never would have suspected that he is a desperate criminal. I thought he was rather nice looking."

"When you've lived as long as I have, my dear, you'll learn not to judge people by first appearances," Mrs. North remarked. "Tell me, did he seem—the criminal I mean—desperate? That is, was he surly looking?"

"Not at all. In fact, he smiled at me when he looked up and saw me in front of the open door. It gave me quite a start, and I realized I'd been rude in staring."

CAM IS STARTLED

Cam was startled from her reverie by hearing Mrs. North calling her from the adjoining stateroom. She hastily opened the door.

"Yes, Mrs. North?"

"How far are we along, now? I've been dozing."

"We passed Williams about fifteen minutes ago. Just one more night on the train, and we'll be at Los Angeles."

"Wonder if you'd mind sending for a waiter? I think I shall have an early dinner and then retire. The trip has been quite trying and I'd like to get a long sleep tonight."

SELECTS DINNER

Cam hunted up the porter and had him go for a waiter. When he arrived with a menu, she helped her employer select an appetizing dinner.

"Why don't you eat in the diner tonight? You may not care to have dinner so early," Mrs. North suggested. "You might enjoy it for a change."

"But you may want me to read to you and—"

"Never mind, child. I'm sure I'll have no trouble sleeping tonight. I can take care of myself. Besides," her pale blue eyes sparkled behind her spectacles, "you may see your friend Mr. Kirkwood. This may be your last chance, you know, as we get in rather early in the morning."

When the woman insisted that she would be all right alone, Cam finally consented and after Mrs. North had finished her dinner, she rang for the porter to make up her bed. The two of them sat in Cam's compartment until the porter knocked and said everything was ready.

IS DISMISSED

"You may run along now—don't bother about me," Mrs. North urged. "I can undress and get to bed without help. Good night."

While Cam felt that she should stay, there was nothing she could do in the face of the older woman's insistence.

She started to the observation car. She'd have time to write a letter to Madge which she could mail when she reached Los Angeles, telling her about the trip.

Almost without realizing it she glanced into the open stateroom next to Mrs. North's as she passed. Joe Raymond was looking right at her, and his face lighted up with a smile.

The deputy sheriff, his guard, was dozing. Cam wondered, as she walked on through the swaying train, if guards were supposed to sleep while on duty. She knew there was another deputy on board who

"I love you," Mark said, "but there is no way out of this tangle of mystery and crime."

"Hide here and you will be safe," Camilla felt a cold chill run up her spine.

Ruby looked tired and discouraged and Camilla hated to leave her alone.

"Look behind you," Frank whispered. And Camilla turned to see the man she had noticed on the train—the gangster with the friendly smile who had made a daring escape.

Ruby realized that Camilla was her friend, but she suspected Frank might betray her in his paper, knowing that a good scoop would mean more to him than her safety.

The newspaper man was standing looking out the back door of the observation car as she entered and seated herself at a writing desk. He saw her a few minutes later, and interrupted long enough to ask her to dine with him.

"When I finish my letter," Cam replied, with a smile.

"Good, I've got to finish a story to put on the wire at Needles for tomorrow's paper," he said. "Suppose I meet you in the diner in fifteen minutes."

The girl said that would be fine, and went on with her writing.

It was about twelve minutes later that she started forward to her car. She might as well mail Madge's letter in Needles, too. But she needed a stamp.

As Cam walked along the narrow corridor, she glanced out the window and was startled to see the headlights of an automobile. It seemed strange to see a car out in this desolate country keeping pace with the train.

As she walked along the narrow corridor she glanced out the window and was startled to see the headlights of an automobile.

MAIN HIGHWAY

It seemed strange to see a car out in this desolate country, and then she laughed softly to herself as she realized that it must be the main highway which paralleled the rail line at this point.

It wasn't entirely dark outside, although it was nearly seven o'clock, so she could plainly make out the outline of the car which was now keeping pace with the train.

"If that driver's racing with us, I hope the highway doesn't cross the tracks," she mused to herself and started on toward her compartment.

TERRIFIC SHOCK

The door of the stateroom occupied by Joe Raymond and the deputy was closed, she noted, as she passed. She paused for a moment and listened outside Mrs. North's door and while she pressed her ear against the panel, there was a sudden terrific shock.

Cam was thrown violently to the floor. The click of the train wheels had suddenly ceased and she realized that they had come to an abrupt stop.

Slowly, she raised herself to her hands and knees. Then she was aware of the door next to Mrs. North's stateroom being flung open and banging against the side of the car.

She felt rather than saw a body hurdling over her, and she looked up in time to see a man dashing down the corridor.

SLAMMED SHUT

The outer door was jerked open and slammed shut, and she was up on her feet, looking around, half dazed still from the shock of her fall.

She glanced out of the window toward the highway and felt a new shock when she saw the shadowy shape of an automobile standing still.

As she looked, a dim figure streaked from the side of the train, leaped into the dark shadow that was the car and then the shadow began to move, rapidly.

The twin red tail lights flashed on just as it disappeared from her range of vision.

Fully recovered now, she stepped swiftly to Mrs. North's door and tried the knob. It was locked. So she went quickly to her compartment adjoining.

She could get into the older woman's room that way. Perhaps she had been hurt and needed help!

Just as she entered her compartment she smelled a sweet pungent odor that suddenly seemed to fill the corridor. Chloroform! She recognized the smell immediately.

IS RELIEVED

Inside her own room she breathed with relief. Mrs. North, a heavy dressing gown covering her from neck to feet was just sitting down.

"Were you hurt, Mrs. North?" Cam asked, breathlessly.

"Just a knock or two. I must have been sound asleep because I found myself on the floor when I recovered from the shock."

"I have no idea what hapepned."

There was a knock at the door, and the conductor, with the porter peering over his shoulder, looked in.

"All right, ladies?" he asked. "Not hurt, I hope?"

Cam assured the conductor they both were all right, but before she could ask what had happened he had gone on. As the girl stepped to the door to follow him, she came face to face with Kirkwood.

"What happened, Frank?" she demanded, unconsciously using his first name in her excitement.

"Great yarn for me!" he cried. "Joe Raymond escaped! He must have knocked Al Bury, the deputy, unconscious by a sudden blow, made sure he'd be quiet by giving him a good whiff of chloroform, and then jerked the signal cord which automatically stops the train and made a run for it. Gosh, what a story!"

TRAIN STARTS

He dashed on his way, just as the train started up again.

Cam turned back into the compartment and saw Mrs. North's eyes beaming brightly at her. She had heard what Kirkwood said.

"I think you'd better get back to bed now, Mrs. North," the girl suggested. The woman arose and accepted her help to the adjoining stateroom.

When she had tucked Mrs. North in, Cam returned to her own compartment and sat down.

"That's funny," she thought. "Mrs. North said she was thrown out of bed when the train stopped so suddenly, but the covers of her bed hadn't even been turned down."

The new champions, who held the lead from the first session right through the finals, are Mrs. Adelaide Neuwirth and Mrs. Lottie Zetosch of New York, Mrs. Helen Levy of Jersey City, N.J., and Mrs Humphrey Wagar of Atlanta, Ga. The runners-up were Mrs. William E. McKenney, Mrs. Olga Hilliard, Mrs. Fred Horn and Mrs. Gussie Planco of New York.

Today's hand was won by Mrs. Zetosch and demonstrates her strong defensive work.

Declarer ducked the first two rounds of spades and a third lead forced the ace. Mrs. Zetosch (East) realized that declarer could probably cash nine tricks as soon as she established her club suit. The king of clubs could not be of any value to the defense—in fact, it might be a detriment. So Mrs. Zetosch brilliantly discarded the king of clubs on the third lead of spades.

Now declarer could not set up the clubs without letting West in to run the spades, and her contract was defeated.

Text Of Roosevelt's Message To Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's annual message to congress:

To the congress of the United States:

I address you, the members of the 77th congress, at a moment unprecedented in the history of the Union. I use the word "unprecedented," because at no previous time has American security been as seriously threatened from without as it is today.

NATIONAL UNITY

Since the permanent formation of our government under the constitution, in 1789, most of the periods of crisis in our history have related to our domestic affairs. Fortunately, only one of these—the four-year war between the states—ever threatened our national unity. Today, thank God, 130,000,000 Americans, in 48 states, have forgotten points of the compass in our national unity.

It is true that prior to 1914 the United States often had been disturbed by events in other continents. We had even engaged in two wars with European nations and in a number of undeclared wars in the West Indies, in the Mediterranean and in the Pacific for the maintenance of American rights and for the principles of peaceful commerce. In no case, however, had a serious threat been raised against our national safety or our independence.

What I seek to convey is the historic truth that the United States as a nation has at all times maintained opposition to any attempt to lock us in behind an ancient Chinese wall while the procession of civilization went past. Today, thinking of our children and their children, we oppose enforced isolation for ourselves or for any part of the Americas.

That determination of ours was proved, for example, during the quarter century of wars following the French Revolution.

While the Napoleonic struggles did threaten interests of the United States because of the French foothold in the West Indies and in Louisiana, and while we engaged in the war of 1812 to vindicate our right to peaceful trade, it is, nevertheless, clear that neither France nor Great Britain nor any other nation was aiming at domination of the whole world.

In like fashion from 1815 to 1914—99 years—no single war in Europe or in Asia constituted a real threat against our future or against the future of any other American nation.

FRIENDLY STRENGTH

Except in the Maximilian interlude in Mexico, no foreign power sought to establish itself in this hemisphere; and the strength of the British fleet in the Atlantic has been a friendly strength. It is still a friendly strength.

Even when the World War broke out in 1914, it seemed to contain only small threat of danger to our own American future. But, as time went on, the American people began to visualize what the downfall of democratic nations might mean to our own democracy.

AGAINST TYRANNY

We need not over-emphasize imperfections in the peace of Versailles. We need not harp on failure of the democracies to deal with problems of world reconstruction. We should remember that the peace of 1919 was far less unjust than the kind of "pacification" which began even before Munich, and which is being carried on under the new order of tyranny that seeks to spread over every continent today. The American people have unalterably set their faces against that tyranny.

Every realist knows that the democratic way of life is at this moment being directly assailed in every part of the world—assailed either by arms, or by secret spreading of poisonous propaganda by those who seek to destroy unity and promote discord in nations still at peace.

During 16 months this assault has blotted out the whole pattern of democratic life in an appalling number of independent nations, great and small. The assailants are still on the march, threatening other nations, great and small.

INFORMATION OF STATE

Therefore, as your president, performing my constitutional duty to "give to the congress information of the state of the union," I find it necessary to report that the future and the safety of our country and of our democracy are overwhelmingly involved in events far beyond our borders.

Armed defence of democratic existence is now being gallantly waged in four continents. If that defence fails, all the population and all the resources of Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia will be dominated by the conquerors. The total of these populations and their resources greatly exceeds the sum total of the population and resources of the whole of the western hemisphere—many times over.

In times like these it is immature—and incidentally untrue—for anybody to brag that an unprepared America, single-handed, and with one hand tied behind its back, can hold off the whole world.

NO GENEROSITY

No realistic American can expect from a dictator's peace international generosity, or return of true independence, or world disarmament, or freedom of expression, or freedom of religion—or even good business.

Such a peace would bring no security for us or for our neighbors. "Those, who would give up essential liberty to purchase a little temporary safety, deserve neither liberty nor safety."

As a nation we may take pride in the fact that we are soft-hearted; but we cannot afford to be soft-headed.

We must always be wary of those who with sounding brass and a tinkling symbal preach the "ism" of appeasement.

We must be especially beware of that small group of selfish men who would clip the wings of the American eagle in order to feather their own nests.

PHYSICAL ATTACK

I have recently pointed out how quickly the tempo of modern warfare could bring into our very midst the physical attack which we must expect if the dictator nations win this war.

There is much loose talk of our immunity from immediate and direct invasion from across the seas. Obviously, as long as the British navy retains its power, no such danger exists. Even if there were no British navy, it is not probable that any enemy would be stupid enough to attack us by land troops in the United States from across thousands of miles of ocean, until it had acquired strategic bases from which to operate.

WE LEARN MUCH

But we learn much from the lessons of the past years in Europe—particularly the lesson of Norway, whose essential seaports were captured by treachery and surprise built up over a series of years.

The first phase of the invasion of this hemisphere would not be the landing of regular troops. The necessary strategic points would be occupied by secret agents and their dupes—and great numbers of them are already here, and in Latin America.

As long as the aggressor nations maintain the offensive, they—not we—will choose the time and the place and the method of their attack.

FUTURE IN DANGER

That is why the future of all American republics is today in serious danger.

That is why this annual message to the congress is unique in our history.

That is why every member of the executive branch of the government and every member of the congress face great responsibility—and great accountability.

The need of the moment is that our actions and our policy should be devoted primarily—almost exclusively—to meeting this foreign peril. For all our domestic problems are now a part of the great emergency.

Just as our national policy in internal affairs has been based upon a decent respect for the rights and dignity of all our fellowmen within our gates, so our national policy in foreign affairs has been based on a decent respect for the rights and dignity of all nations, large and small. And the justice of morality must and will win in the end.

Our national policy is this:

FIRST, by an impressive expression of the public will and without regard to partisanship, we are committed to all-inclusive national defence.

SECOND, by an impressive expression of the public will and without regard to partisanship, we are committed to full support of all those resolute peoples, everywhere, who are resisting aggression and are thereby keeping war away from our hemisphere. By this support, we express our determination that the democratic cause shall prevail; and we strengthen the defence and security of our own nation.

THIRD, by an impressive expression of the public will and without regard to partisanship, we are committed to the proposition that principles of morality and considerations for our own security will never permit us to acquiesce in a peace dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers. We know that enduring peace cannot be bought at the cost of the other people's freedom.

NO SUBSTANTIAL DIFFERENCE

In the recent national election there was no substantial difference between the two great parties in respect to that national policy. No issue was fought out on this line before the American electorate. Today, it is abundantly evident that American citizens everywhere are demanding and supporting speedy and complete action in recognition of obvious danger.

Therefore, the immediate need is a swift and driving increase in our armament production.

Leaders of industry and labor have responded to our summons. Goals of speed have been set. In some cases these goals are being reached ahead of time; in some cases we are on schedule; in other cases there are slight but not serious delays; and in some cases—and I am sorry to say very important cases—we are all concerned by the slowness of the accomplishment of our plans.

SUBSTANTIAL PROGRESS

The army and navy, however, have made substantial progress during the past year. Actual experience is improving and speeding up our methods of production with every passing day. And today's best is not good enough for tomorrow.

I am not satisfied with the progress thus far made. The men in charge of the program represent the best in training, ability and patriotism. They are not satisfied with the progress thus far made. None of us will be satisfied until the job is done.

No matter whether the original goal was set too high or too low, our objective is quicker and better results.

To give two illustrations:

BEHIND SCHEDULE

We are behind schedule in turning out finished airplanes; we are working day and night to solve the innumerable problems and to catch up.

We are ahead of schedule in building warships; but we are working to get even further ahead of schedule.

To change a whole nation from a basis of peace time production of implements of peace to a basis of war time production of implements of war is no small task. And the greatest difficulty comes at the beginning of the program, when new tools and plant facilities and new assembly lines and ship ways must first be constructed before the actual material begins to flow steadily and speedily from them.

KEEP ITSELF INFORMED

The congress, of course, must rightly keep itself informed at all times of the progress of the program. However, there is certain information, as the congress itself will readily recognize, which, in the interest of our own security and those of the nations we are supporting, must of needs be kept in confidence.

New circumstances are constantly begetting new needs for our safety. I shall ask this congress for greatly increased new appropriations and authorizations to carry on what we have begun.

I also ask this Congress for authority and for funds sufficiently to manufacture additional munitions and war supplies of many kinds, to be turned over to those nations which are now in actual war with aggressor nations.

Our most useful and immediate role is to act as an arsenal for them as well as for ourselves. They do not need man power. They do need billions of dollars worth of the weapons of defence.

The time is near when they will not be able to pay for them in ready cash. We cannot and will not tell them they must surrender, merely because of present inability to pay for the weapons which we know they must have.

I do not recommend that we make them a loan of dollars with which to pay for these weapons—a loan to be repaid in dollars.

I recommend that we make it possible for those nations to continue to obtain war materials in the United States, fitting their orders into our own program. Nearly all of their material, would, if the time ever came, be useful for our own defence.

FREE TO DECIDE

Taking counsel of expert military and naval authorities, considering what is best for our own security, we are free to decide how much should be kept here and how much should be sent abroad to our friends who by their determined and heroic resistance are giving us time in which to make ready our own defence.

For what we send abroad, we shall be repaid, within a reasonable time following the close of hostilities, in similar materials, or at our option, in other goods of many kinds which they can produce and which we need.

Let us say to the democracies: "We Americans are vitally concerned in your defence of freedom. We are putting forth our energies, our resources and our organizing powers to give you the strength to regain and maintain a free world. We shall send you, in ever-increasing numbers, ships, planes, tanks, guns. This is our purpose and our pledge."

In fulfillment of this purpose we will not be intimidated by the threats of dictators that they will regard as a breach of international law and as an act of war our aid to the democracies which dare to resist their aggression. Such aid is not an act of war, even if a dictator should unilaterally proclaim it so to be.

DID NOT WAIT

When the dictators are ready to make war upon us, they will not wait for an act of war on our part. They did not wait for Norway or Belgium or the Netherlands to commit an act of war.

Their only interest is in a new one-way international law, which lacks mutuality in its observance, and, therefore, becomes an instrument of oppression.

The happiness of future generations of Americans may well depend upon how effective and how immediate we can make our aid felt. No one can tell the exact character of the emergency situations that we may be called upon to meet. The nation's hands must not be tied when the nation's life is in danger.

We must all prepare to make the sacrifices that the emergency—as serious as war itself—demands. Whatever stands in the way of speed and efficiency in defence preparations must give way to the national need.

FULL CO-OPERATION

A free nation has the right to expect full co-operation from all groups. A free nation has the right to look to the leaders of business, of labor, and of agriculture to take the lead in stimulating effort, not among other groups but within their own groups.

The best way of dealing with the few slackers or trouble makers in our midst is, first, to shame them by patriotic example, and, if that fails, to use the sovereignty of government to save government.

As men do not live by bread alone, they do not fight by armaments alone. Those who man our defences, and those behind them who build our defences, must have the stamina and courage which come from an unshakable belief in the manner of life which they are defending. The mighty action which we are calling for cannot be based on a disregard of all things worth fighting for.

The nation takes great satisfaction and, much strength from the things which have been done to make its people conscious of their individual stake in the preservation of democratic life in America. Those things have toughened the fibre of our people, have renewed their faith and strengthened their devotion to the institutions we make ready to protect.

SUPREME FACTOR

Certainly this is no time to stop thinking about the social and economic problems which are the root cause of the social revolution which is today a supreme factor in the world.

There is nothing mysterious about the foundations of a healthy and strong democracy. The basic things expected by our people of their political and economic systems are simple. They are:

Equality of opportunity for youth and for others.

Jobs for those who can work.

Security for those who need it.

The ending of special privilege for the few.

The preservation of civil liberties for all.

The enjoyment of the fruits of scientific progress in a wider and constantly rising standard of living.

These are the simple and basic things that must never be lost sight of in the turmoil and unbelievable complexity of our modern world. The inner and abiding strength of our economic and political systems is dependent upon the degree to which they fulfill these expectations.

Many subjects connected with our social economy call for immediate improvement.

As examples:

We should bring more citizens under the coverage of old age pensions and unemployment insurance.

We should widen the opportunities for adequate medical care.

We should plan a better system by which persons deserving or needing gainful employment may obtain it.

I have called for personal sacrifice. I am assured of the willingness of almost all Americans to respond to that call.

MORE TAXES

A part of the sacrifice means the payment of more money in taxes. In my budget message I recommend that a greater portion of this great defence program be paid for from taxation than we are paying today. No person should try, or be allowed, to get rich out of this program; and the principle of tax payments in accordance with ability to pay should be constantly before our eyes to guide our legislation.

If the Congress maintains these principles, the voters, putting patriotism ahead of pocketbooks, will give you their applause.

4 ESSENTIAL FREEDOMS

In the future days, which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential human freedoms.

The first is freedom of speech and expression—everywhere in the world.

The second is freedom of every person to worship God in his own way—everywhere in the world.

The third is freedom from want—which, translated into world terms, means economic understanding which will secure to every nation a healthy peacetime life for its inhabitants — everywhere in the world.

The fourth is freedom from fear—which, translated into world terms, means a world-wide reduction of armaments to such a point and in such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of physical aggression against any neighbor—anywhere in the world.

That is no vision of a distant millennium. It is a definite basis for a kind of world attainable in our own time and generation. That kind of world is the very antithesis of the so-called new order of tyranny which the dictators seek to create with the crash of a bomb.

To that new order we oppose the greater conception — the moral order. A good society is able to face schemes of world domination and foreign revolutions alike without fear.

ENGAGED IN CHANGE

Since the beginning of our American history we have been engaged in change—in a perpetual peaceful revolution—a revolution which goes on steadily, quietly adjusting itself to changing conditions—without the concentration camp or the quicklime in the ditch. The world order which we seek is the co-operation of free countries, working together in a friendly, civilized society.

This nation has placed its destiny in the hand and hearts of its millions of free men and women; and its faith in freedom under the guidance of God. Freedom means the supremacy of human rights everywhere. Our support goes to those who struggle to gain those rights or keep them. Our strength is in our unity of purpose.

To that high concept there can be no end save victory.

FORTY-NINERS HOLD REUNION HERE SATURDAY

by the Canadians after capture of Hill 70 against 22 German counter-attacks, without the loss of a foot of ground; the marshes of Passchendaele, where at Mosselmarkt and Meetchele, the 49th acquitted itself with undying valor and participation in the last great "Hundred Days", all had their place in the conversation.

TRAVEL FAR

One old warrior, Maj. A. W. Owen, formerly a commander of "C" Company, came all the way from Chicago to attend the reunion. Lt. Norman Campbell came from Calgary. "Gosh, I haven't seen Norman for 20 years," said one fellow officer as he greeted the Calgarian.

Forty-Niners commenced gathering in the rotunda of the Macdonald at an early hour. In this spacious section of the hotel, the regiment band of the 2nd Bn., Edmonton Regiment, under Sgt. Maj. Edward Kirkwood played stirring marches, "The Old Brigade," "Pack Up Your Troubles," "Tipperary," "Long, Long Trail," "Colonel Bogey," "Old Comrades," "National Emblem," "If You Were the Only Girl," and others were played and the "old sweats sang lustily as the band struck up each succeeding number.

Then, as tribute to the "New Brigade," the band played popular tunes of the present war, "Beer Barrel Polka," "There'll Always Be An England" and "Wish Me Luck."

At 7 p.m. Maj. Gen. Griesbach entered the rotunda and "Cook House Door" echoed and re-echoed through the corridors.

Then Piper A. A. Thomson, who was an original Forty-Niner, warmed up his bagpipes and played the regimental march, "Bonnie Dundee." In single file the Old Guard marched into the main dining room, circled it once and sat down to a hearty repast of roast turkey and other delicacies, conspicuous by their absence at such points as Hell-Fire Corner, the Menin Gate and other hot spots.

Several toasts were drunk. First came that to The King. Others were Our Gallant Dead, The City of Edmonton, Sister Battalions and Absent Friends.

A number of telegrams and letters were received and read by Maj. Gen Griesbach. Telegrams included those from Lt.-Col. W. G. Stillman, who commanded the Edmonton Regiment when it left here for overseas in December, 1939; Major George Beaton now acting commanding officer and others.

SPECIAL CHEERS

Special cheers greeted the reading of one from Lieut.-Col. Hamilton Gault, D.S.O., who was mainly responsible for raising the Princess Pats in 1914. Further cheers echoed through the banquet room as telegrams of congratulation to the 49th on its 26th birthday were read from Lt.-Col. W. Neilson, officer commanding the R.C.R. at London, Ont.; from Lieut.-Col. Royal Ewing, D.S.O., officer commanding the 42nd Royal Highlanders of Canada, Montreal and from the Princess Pats at Winnipeg.

Other communications included letters from Scotty Weir at Ocean Falls, B.C., Jack Rae, Mrs. Arthur Forbes of Los Angeles, Mrs. Devaney and family and others.

A large number of Forty-Niners who have sons serving in the perpetuating battalions or other units of the Canadian Army were asked to stand and received the plaudits of their comrades.

Two members of the Royal Australian Air Force were present and they were given a great ovation, as word of the Anzacs irresistible drive into Bardia was just coming through. And besides, the Forty-Niners had many kind thoughts of the Aussies remaining from Moquet Farm and other mutual "rendezvous with Death."

Maj.-Gen. Griesbach, in his remarks, directed attention to work the association is doing on behalf of the young battalion overseas. He said that more than 100,000 cigarettes a month are being sent, in addition to which, magazines and newspapers are going forward regularly.

TRIBUTE TO "MIKE"

He paid a warm tribute to John Michaels for his unremitting work in this direction. Mr. Michaels came to the rescue in this work," said Maj.-Gen. Griesbach. "He seems to have a capacity for making money and for making a success of organization. So much so, that I think in my old age I will go and live with him. We have made him an honorary member of our committee."

Maj.-Gen. Griesbach, in proposing the toast to the City of Edmonton, recalled that the regiment had taken unto itself the name of "Edmonton Regiment" and always had striven to uphold the honor of this city, which he felt it had done.

MAYOR SPEAKS

Mayor John W. Fry, in reply, pointed out that the 49th had brought honor and glory to Edmonton, carrying the banner high from the day it was mobilized, right through to Armistice Day in Mons and until demobilization here. "Edmonton is proud of its veterans," he said. "It always has been and always will be so. The Edmonton Regiment is now overseas again and the young battalion is doing everything in its power to uphold the high traditions established by you men from 1914-1918."

He expressed the hope that by the time the 27th annual banquet comes, "Our cause will have been victorious."

Lt. Col. R. Walter Hale, M.C., officer commanding the 2nd. Bn., Edmonton Regiment, responded to the Sister Battalions toast. He stressed the desire of his battalion to carry on and uphold the splendid traditions set by the 49th. He and his officers would bend every effort in this direction.

Among the Forty-Niners attending were Lt. Col. Allan H. Elliott; Lt. Col. L. C. Harris, V.D.; Major Arthur Chattell, D.S.O.; Major R. C. Arthurs, M.C.; Major G. D. K. Kinnaird; Capt. J. C. MacQuarrie; Lt. George Gleave; Lt. Miles Palmer; Lt. J. L. Stone; A. W. Nelson, Clyde; Andy Black, Fort Saskatchewan; Norman E. Cooke; Chester McGowan, Hairy Hill; Capt. Walter Hunter; George Mills, Wainwright; Lt. Norman Campbell, Calgary; Lt. Tim Ramsey, M.C.; L-C. Graham, Currie Barracks, Calgary; Major C. W. Lilley; Major R. J. Pratley; Lt. R. V. Patterson, Currie Barracks, Calgary; Frank Pilkie, Vermilion; Lt. Ed. Newland, Camrose; Sid Parsons; C.Q.M.S. Charles Walker; Sgt. Maj. Bill Elliott, Camrose; C.S.M. Sid Hughes, Camrose.

Lt. Ed. Bryant, of the Edmonton Fusiliers, Active Army, whose father served with the 49th, was a guest.

WARM OVATION

Bert Hobbins, son of the late Lt. Col. A. K. Hobbins, D.S.O., original adjutant of the 49th, was present and was given a warm ovation. He is now an aviation engineer, one of the experts with the Britol company and has been loaned to the Canadian authorities for war service. Stationed at Toronto, he is visiting his mother.

Members of the executive in charge of arrangements for the banquet were Earle Hay, secretary of the association; Norman Cooke, Norman Arnold and John Michaels.

Motion pictures were shown by H. P. Brown, of the extension department, University of Alberta. Mr. Brown was given a warm ovation when Maj. Gen. Griesbach recalled that a brother of Mr. Brown had been killed in action serving in France with the 49th.
